U.S. To Propose Small Steps To Improve China Relations

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, seeking a new era in its relations with Peking, plans to propose to Communist China in Warsaw this week the two countries take small, practical steps to open up trade, travel and communications between them.

Nixon administration officials expect slow progress in the Warsaw talks opening Tuesday and would not be surprised if there was no movement at all for some months. But they have been encouraged by the speed and businesslike manner in which the Chinese have responded to recent U.S. overtures for discussions.

Behind their view is a belief Red China's sharpening border quarrel with the Soviet Union is causing Peking to reassess its traditionally hostile attitude toward the United States.

The first of what amounts to a new series of ambassadorial meetings—such talks were held between 1955 and 1968—will be in the Chinese embassy at Warsaw. They were arranged as a result of preliminary contacts there Dec. 3, 11 and Jan. 7.

Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel, a professional diplomat with long experience in handling relations with Communist countries, will represent the United States. He emphasized in a speech here Thursday, "We have no intention of exploiting" Sino-Soviet differences.

But such information as Washington has gotten from foreign governments about Peking's attitude—and its reading of Chinese propaganda—indicates the Chinese still see themselves encircled by hostile countries, including the United States.

The United States withdrawal of forces from Vietnam is another new element in the situation. The troop pullback is developing parallel with the Nixon policy of reducing U.S. involvement in Asia while reaffirming basic commitments to its allies.

Stoessel is in position to argue in the Warsaw talks that the whole trend of U.S.-Asian policy should be evidence that Washington harbors no hostile intentions toward the Chinese mainland.

But officials here believe more is likely to be accomplished in the talks' early stages by advocating small, practical steps to improve relations than by raising large political and strategic issues.

Nevertheless, any Chinese proposal for an agreement of some general nature, such as renouncing force in resolving Sino-American differences, is expected to receive careful and probably favorable U.S. consideration.

The practical proposals so far worked out for presentation in Warsaw are understood to call for re-establishing direct communication links between the U.S. and mainland China; for exchanging such professionals as public health personnel, medical researchers and journalists; and for clearing some trade channels.

The last communications link between the U.S. and China, a commercial system for ordinary message exchanges, was cut by the Chinese in November 1968, according to State Department records.

Since then it has been necessary for Americans to use a link through Hong Kong or a third country. Postal communications ordinarily go through Hong Kong.

Last summer the Nixon administration made its first move to lower trade and travel restrictions against Red China. It broke the rigid U.S. trade ban to permit Americans abroad to buy and bring home up to $100 worth of Red Chinese goods, and it gave limited permission travel of the mainland.

More recently the administration removed the $100 limit on personal purchases by Americans abroad and also authorized foreign subsidiaries of American firms to engage in trade with mainland China.

Peking so far has not responded to these moves. But some officials here believe that in view of its difficulties with Russia and with the pro-Soviet countries of Eastern Europe, China eventually will have to look elsewhere for trade and some commerce in nonstrategic goods with U.S. firms is at least conceivable.

There are both more general and more specific aims than trade behind U.S. policy. In general, as one official expressed it privately, "China is going to be a nation of a billion people in 10 years, and it's going to be a nuclear power, and we ought to be in contact."

Officials point out no agreement to limit nuclear armaments in the world can be effective in the long run unless China is a party to it.

No Evidence Of Genocide, Advisor Says

LAGOS (AP) — Lord Hunt, the adviser to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson on Nigerian war relief, returned today from the last strongholds of what used to be Biafra and reported he found no evidence of genocide, sources close to him said.

An informant said that during a three-day tour Lord Hunt visited Owerri, Biafra's last major town; Orlu, the last rebel government seat; Uli, the location of the jungle airstrip that kept Biafra alive with supplies from the outside; Aba, and other places.

The British representative said the general refugee situation was "encouraging" and the refugee problem of a far smaller scale than some had predicted. He said thousands of refugees in apparently good condition were returning home.

Hunt also reported that he saw Nigerian federal soldiers feeding refugees from the Ibo tribe.

Added To Tour

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant added Lagos to a tour of African nations and arrived Sunday to discuss ways the world organization could aid reconstruction after the 30-month civil war.

Thant was to have flown to Port Harcourt today for a first-hand look at how the Nigerian Red Cross is coping with the hungry refugees streaming from the bush. But he decided not to go, reportedly because he was expected in Paris Tuesday and did not have time for the trip.

Thant said he was satisfied with the federal government's treatment of the refugees. "I am convinced that the process of national reconciliation has started very auspiciously," he said.

The secretary-general said he had spoken with Henrik Beer, head of the League of Red Cross Societies, who had just returned from a visit to what was Biafra. Thant said Beer had found "no hint of even the slightest, remotest evidence of violence or mistreatment of Ibos by federal forces."

He said Beer found Ibos and federal soldiers fraternizing in a climate "much more genial" than in Europe after World War II.

Thant was to have flown to Port Harcourt today for a first-hand look at the relief work, but he decided he did not have time.

Coordinating Point

Two planes took 80 foreign newsmen to Port Harcourt Sunday for the first press visit to what once was Biafra since the war ended last Monday. The takeoff was delayed eight hours, and police with dogs and clubs were called to hold back the newsmen as they staged a demonstration at the air terminal

Home Appliance Warranties Get Shorter, Simpler

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home appliance warranties are growing visibly shorter and simpler as a result of federal prodding.

But the most significant deletion since former presidential consumer adviser Betty Furness launched the warranty-strengthening program a year ago is one most consumers paid no attention to in the first place.

"This warranty is given in lieu of all other warranties expressed or implied" no longer appears on warranties from the major producers of the 100 million or so toasters, refrigerators, air conditioners and other home appliances sold in this country every year.

The phrase relieved the maker and retailer of any obligation that an appliance sold as, say, a dishwasher did, in fact, wash dishes.

Without such a disclaimer, a manufacturer is responsible for the implied warranty created by simply calling a product a dishwasher.

A federal task force said last year of appliance warranties: "Actually, they are all too frequently a fog-shrouded halo which effectively camouflages a lengthy list of disclaimers and limitations upon the seller's obligations under an express or implied warranty which the law would otherwise impose upon him."

With the task force report in hand, Miss Furness recommended federal regulation of warranties if the industry didn't shape up within a year.

In response, the General Electric dishwasher warranty, for example, shrank from 600 words of legal jargon to 115 simpler words. And the industry agreed to set up a quasi-independent consumer complaint council.

Was the action sufficient to head off congressional legislation?

The question will be debated beginning Tuesday in hearings by the Senate Commerce Committee.

Spokesmen in the office of Miss Furness' successor, Virginia Knauer, have declined comment on the question so far. They say they have no desire to prematurely remove the legislative threat hanging over manufacturers' heads.

Mrs. Knauer has expressed some pleasure, however, with the industry's steps.

The steps taken by the manufacturers since January satisfy—on paper, at least—all but one of the task force proposals.

Thus, the most controversial point at the Senate hearings this week is likely to be whether the manufacturer should assume the responsibility for assuring that its retail outlets perform repair and warranty work satisfactorily.

A spokesman for the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers says the industry opposes such provisions. "The industry is very interested in solution of this problem," he said. "But we don't think it's at the federal level."

Ionia Escapee Wants Back In

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — An escapee who was rejected when he tried to turn himself in during the weekend said he would try to put himself behind bars again today.

The 42-year-old Muskegon, Mich. man ran into a maze of legal barriers when he sought reentry to Ionia State Hospital from which he escaped in 1962.

He was ruled criminally insane 20 years ago and ordered confined after he set fire to a downtown Muskegon apartment house.

Released on a three-day pass on Dec. 8, 1962, he fled the state and worked in Chicago for five years, he told police.

The man returned to the hospital over the weekend and said he wanted to surrender to receive treatment for the hallucinations he said he suffers.

But Ionia officials refused to lock him up because a new commitment order was needed from Muskegon authorities.

A Muskegon probate judge suggested jailing him until the prosecutor could review his case. The prosecutor's office suggested locking him up over the weekend.

But county jail officials said they couldn't do it under a written order from Sheriff Marion J. Calkins, who refused to jail persons regarded as mentally ill without a written judicial mandate.

"I'm going to get a hotel room and try to turn myself in again Monday," the escapee told police.

Heart Transplant Patient Improves

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan's double heart transplant recipient, Gerald Rector, was reported somewhat improved Sunday after doctors expressed concern about a kidney infection.

Doctors at University Hospital in Ann Arbor said Sunday night that there has been improvement in the kidney condition and that the new heart is continuing to beat well.

Nixon Call To Cut Spending Faces Democrat Challenge

Army To Get Tank, Costs To Be Pared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army appears to have won its fight for an advanced battle tank, but the service probably will have to settle for a cheaper and simpler machine.

Pentagon sources said Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard has completed his months-long review of the MBT 70 tank, which a House committee called "overly sophisticated, unnecessarily complex and too expensive."

Army officials spoke optimistically about the outcome of the Packard review, and Defense Department sources indicated the Army has reason to be optimistic.

Army leaders accept a Packard requirement to produce a tank much cheaper than the $700,000 price tag on the original model opposed in Congress.

Planners now expect to be able to produce an advanced model for about $500,000 apiece, still the most costly tank in U.S. history.

The savings would come from stripping away certain sophisticated extras as exotic night-firing devices, a nuclear decontamination unit and an auxiliary power source.

The result, Army officials said, will still yield an excellent new basic tank with an improved engine, gun, missile, suspension system and a novel automatic ammunition loader that enables the tank to fire while on the move over rough terrain.

Until about Christmas, Army officials felt the future of the new main battle tank was a very close question.

But now they feel Packard has been persuaded the Army can't come up with a simpler and more economical tank which would achieve its basic objectives of being able to outshoot any known opposing armor in the 1970s.

Students Crash Plane Safely

TRAVERSE CITY (AP)—Two Northwest Michigan College students escaped uninjured from a single-engine plane crash Sunday afternoon when they attempted an emergency landing on Lake Leelanau near Traverse City.

Pilot Ronald Schultz, 23, of Grosse Pointe Woods, and his passenger Thomas Gardner, 19 of Chelsea, were reported shaken up but uninjured when their plane flipped over during an emergency descent en route from Sugar Loaf Mountain resort to Traverse City.

A loss of power to the aircraft prompted the emergency landing on the snow - covered lake, according to State Police at Traverse City.

State Democrats Spurn Primary In 'Dull' Meeting

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Democrats, spurred by black and labor forces, Sunday rejected the concept of a presidential primary put forth by their own political reform commission.

Instead, they voted 1,245-914 for revamping the structure of the current state convention system through which presidential candidates are nominated.

The action capped what one Democrat called a "dull as dishwater" state convention that cost the party so much it passed a hat among delegates.

But the weekend gave potential candidates—including former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh and State Sens. Sander Levin of Berkley and Roger Craig of Dearborn—a chance to court of voters and expressed party sentiment on such questions as the 18-year-old vote.

Delegates authorized party officials to launch a petition drive to put the question of a lowered voting age on the ballot.

Proposals Advanced

They also declared that all residency requirements and property qualifications for voting should be abolished; college students should have the right to vote in the communities where they live while in school; the current 13-hour election period should be extended; and the principles of one-man, one-vote and proportional representation should be established within political parties.

Most proposals would require legislative action to become effective.

"This is the first time a political party has been willing to share its power by broadening involvement," said Dean William Haber of the University of Michigan, chairman of the reform commission.

Major Gains

"There were major gains in reform," agreed Levin, who served as associate commission chairman.

"But from my point of view and the commission's," he said, the failure of the presidential primary was "a major loss."

Levin and Haber pledged to fight for the primary, possibly through a petition drive planned by the dissident New Democratic Coalition.

Levin also indicated he would move ahead with previous plans to introduce legislation dealing with a presidential primary.

Proponents, including former Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency, said a primary would provide a better-informed electorate by bringing the candidates before the voters.

"Born Of Despair"

He cited appearances of the late Robert F. Kennedy in California before a primary, and told the estimated 2,500 Michigan Democrats: "If you wanted to hear a great debate on white racism in 1968, you could not hate it here."

"The primary would provide for participation of all people heretofore alienated," Haber contended.

One Negro delegate said the Black Panthers and militant Republic of New Africa were "born of despair. It's incumbent on us to make democracy a reality. A primary," he said, "would make it easier for me to sell democracy in the Democratic Party to the black community."

But, in the first spirited debate of the convention, many blacks and representatives of the powerful United Auto Workers Union argued against a primary.

Douglas Fraser, a UAW executive board member, said a primary "diffuses power, weakens discipline and erodes the two-party system. God knows, the

Deputy Killer May Be Dead

DETROIT (AP) — Suspicion continues to grow that a fugitive wanted for the fatal shooting of a Washtenaw County sheriff's deputy may have died of wounds suffered in the shootout.

A manhunt continued through the weekend for A.J. Simpson, a convicted robber who escaped from custody Thursday while being transported from Ann Arbor to Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson.

Simpson was believed seriously wounded in the shootout, which left Deputy Frank Crampton dead and Deputy Harold Ewald and fellow prisoner Henry Rutherford wounded. Two hostages were taken in the escape but were later released unharmed.

A spokesman for the Detroit police homicide bureau said no new leads had been found. He said a number of tips have been run down, but all have proved to be blind alleys. "He may be dead," the spokesman added.

Election-Year Congress Back On Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 91st Congress returned to the capital today, its Democratic majority poised to open the election-year session by challenging President Nixon's call for a cut in education spending.

Even before Nixon goes to Capitol Hill Thursday to deliver his first State of the Union message, congressional Democrats may send him a message of their own—go ahead and veto the budget-raising appropriation for education and health programs.

The $19.7 billion appropriation is for a budget year already more than half over. The White House has said flatly Nixon will veto it, because it exceeds his budget by $1.26 billion.

Democrats will need a two-thirds vote, first in the House and then the Senate, to override a veto. GOP leaders express confidence any override attempt will fail, and even House Speaker John W. McCormack has said it will be difficult to defeat the President.

Tops Senate Agenda

The bill tops the Senate agenda. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the debate will begin without the traditional delay to await the State of the Union address.

Democratic leaders see the issue as one of natural priorities, insisting that money for more education and health research can be pared from other outlays —primarily defense. Republican loyalists insist rejection of the extra spending is vital in Nixon's efforts to combat inflation.

The House passed the bill before the break, so final Senate rollcall, likely this week, would send the measure to the White House.

New Cuts Ordered

Even as the HEW spending debate begins, Nixon has ordered new cuts in his budget for fiscal 1971, which begins July 1.

That budget blueprint may go to Congress about Feb. 2.

Nixon wants original estimates trimmed by about $3 billion, to approximately $200 billion, to keep the budget in balance without new taxes.

The Nov. 3 congressional elections, with the entire House and 35 Senate seats at stake, will cast a political influence over much of the session.

But with his major proposals still awaiting action, Nixon is going to need Democratic votes on both sides of the Capitol, and that may lead to a conciliatory political tone--at least until autumn.

Election A Question

The pressures of campaigning may affect the congressional timetable, too.

Mansfield, who is running for re-election in Montana, said he is prepared to keep the Senate in session until two weeks before election day and avoid a post-election session.

But the House may be anxious for an earlier getaway, even if it means a return to work after Nov. 3.

Mansfield said he would confer with McCormack in an effort to speed 1970 action on appropri-

Mining Company Land Trades Benefit Public

The mining industry, sometimes pictured as a despoiler of lands, is making it possible for Michigan citizens to acquire thousands of acres of prime recreation and conservation lands.

A series of trades between the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. and the Department of Natural Resources is giving the mining company land in Marquette County in exchange for key public ownership parcels throughout the Upper Peninsula.

Since the series of exchanges began in June 1966, the state has acquired 2,812 acres in 11 of the Upper Peninsula's 15 counties for 2,845 acres of state-owned land in central Marquette County.

Cleveland-Cliffs needs the state land to allow the company to consolidate its ownership for planned expansion of low grade iron ore mining and tailings basins for its ore beneficiation operations. Most of the land it has acquired in the current series of exchanges has been for use in developing the vast Empire Mine.

Opened In 1963

The $44,000,000 Empire plant was placed in operation in December 1963, and a $40,000,000 expansion was begun there two years later to boost production to the present capacity of 3,400,000 tons of iron ore pellets annually.

In exchange for its land, the state has received parcels with high priority for public use. Some of it contains deer yards. Some is valuable for other game and waterfowl habitat. Some contains lake or river frontage and includes good fishing or canoeing water. Some is needed for development of state forest campgrounds or department field offices.

The lands acquired by the state are located in Marquette, Alger, Houghton, Chippewa, Schoolcraft, Iron, Dickinson, Luce, Delta, Mackinac and Ontonagon counties, in addition to 160 acres of deer yard in the northern Lower Peninsula.

Quality Parcels

"The state has obtained much high quality recreation land and many strategic parcels as a result of this series of exchanges," said Donald G. Zettle, Marquette, assistant regional manager of the DNR.

"Many parcels of state land are blocked off by private ownership. By acquiring these key parcels, the state can open many more acres to the public for hunting, fishing, camping, timber harvest, etc."

Most of the land obtained by the state in the Cleveland-Cliffs series is acquired through three-way exchanges. The state maintains a list of priorities on pivate lands the DNR would like to acquire for public use. The DNR takes options on these lands as they become available and matches the parcels with the appraised price of state parcels wanted by Cleveland - Cliffs. If the exchange is approved by the company and the Natural Resources Commission, the land is purchased by Cleveland-Cliffs and traded to the state.

This procedure permits the state to obtain land that it otherwise could not acquire because the department cannot sell public land to purchase other lands.

19 Segments

Cleveland-Cliffs officials pointed out that the procedure has another important advantage: It brings great economic benefits to the region by making possible the development of properties like the Empire Mine with its huge payrolls and tax payments.

So far, 19 segments have been completed in the series of exchanges, and there still are a substantial number of additional segments to be completed.

"About 2,300 acres of state land remain to be disposed of under a tentative agreement reached by the department's land and water policy committee," Zettle said. "But Cleveland-Cliffs has indicated there may be a few more forties the company is interested in."

Both parties agree that the causes of conservation and industrial progress are being mutually served by the exchanges.

Ross To Chair Planning Panel

The Boards of Supervisors of the six counties of the Central Upper Peninsula Economic Development District (Alger, Delta, Dickinson, Marquette, Menominee, and Schoolcraft) passed resolutions authorizing the organization of a multi-county Regional Planning Commission.

The need for a regional comprehensive sewer and water plan for the Central Upper Peninsula was the basis for such action, officials said.

The organization meeting of the appointed representatives of the six counties was held in Escanaba last week.

George W. Rusch, executive director of the Central Upper Peninsula Economic Development District (CUPEDD), presided as acting chairman until officers were elected.

Election of officers was held and as a result of this election, R. Myron Ross, representing Menominee County, was named chairman; Dick Berndt, Alger County, vice chairman; Frank Mead, Marquette County, Secretary; Ralph Gillam, Schoolcraft County, treasurer; Gene Kee, Delta County. director; Wayne Nelson, Dickson County, Directors; and Leo Gariepy, Alger County, Director.

The commission then passed a resolution ordering the preparation of a comprehensive sewer and water plan for the central Upper Peninsula Regional Planning Area. This plan will be completed primarily for those areas under 5,500 as most of the larger communities have completed comprehensive plans in the past.

It is necessary that any community applying for sewer or water facility grants after Oct. 1, 1970 have a Comprehensive Sewer and Water Plan. The Commission also authorized the submission of an application to the Farmer's Home Administration for funds to complete this regional Sewer and Water Plan.

With the increased concern for the prevention of air and water pollution, the counties of the Central Upper Peninsula authorized this Regional Planning Commission to develop a comprehensive plan for the area that promote efficient and orderly development of the communities, provide information necessary to avoid overlapping, duplication, and overdesign or underdesign of facilities including those for land use, health, sanitation, water, transporation and schools.

Pamphlet File Offers Answers At City Library

"How can I get ball point pen marks off a permanent-press shirt?"

"How many traffic fatalities were there in West Virginia in 1968?"

"What are the most recent revisions in the United States imigation laws?"

These are examples of questions asked by patrons of the Escanaba Public Library and for which the answers are found in the liorary's vertical pamphlet file.

To acquaint library visitors with this often overlooked source of answers to difficult questions, the library is featuring this month the contents of its "Pam" file by way of a bulletin board display of samples of the wide range of subjects represented in the file.

Subject Folders

There is a folder of 10 to 20 pamphlets for each subject, filed alphabetically. The subjects include popular term paper topics such as drugs, air pollution, juvenile delinquency, and prisons and prisoners, but also included are home economics, agriculture, forestry, infant care, and building construction. More than 200 subjects are included.

In addition, there is one file drawer devoted to topics pertaining to Michigan, in which are several folders on Escanaba and more on Delta County. Another drawer is designated, "United States," and its titles include Laws, Armed Services, Foreign Policy, etc.

Kept Current

Every effort is made to keep the file filled with only current information. Items are dated as entered and a periodic "weeding" of outdated materials is done. Information found in the "pam" file is intended to supplement magazine articles and other resource materials, and serve as additional reference sources for bibliography purposes.

To keep the file current, the library subscribes to several pamphlet indeces — Vertical File Index and the monthly catalog of the Superintendent of Documents of the United States are examples — from which pamphlet orders are made.

In addition to a file of current interest topics, two file drawers of current information on many occupations and professions are maintained.

U.P. Group First Housing Concern

"ACTION (Area Cooperation to Improve our Neighborhoods) Housing Corporation is the first regional non-profit organization in Michigan formed to deal with the problem of housing for low to medium-income families." said Jon R. Wolf, of the State Housing Development Authority, Lansing, in a meeting with the incorporators in Marquette.

Wolf was in Marquette to consult with the directors of the corporation on their recent proposal to the authority for construction of 350 units of new housing in the Upper Peninsula to provide home ownership for families whose incomes do not permit them to purchase in the commercial market.

This corporation, whose articles were filed Dec. 19, 1969, is the product of nearly three years of effort of the Alger-Marquette Community Action Board's Sub-Committee on Housing, of which Mrs. Michael F. DeFant is Chairman.

It was organized through cooperation with the Upper Peninsula Committee for Area Progress, and the community action agencies in Hancock, Sault Ste. Marie, Iron River, Ironwood and Escanaba.

ACTION Housing Corp. was formed Nov. 25, in a meeting at the Newman Center, Marquette, by representatives of the churches of the Upper Peninsula, who had previously pledged funds to the support of the corporation.

The incorporators are: Rev. Carlson Gerdau, Munising, representing the Episcopal Diocese of Northern Michigan; Rev. Ralph W. Janka, Marquette District, United Methodist Church; David Selin, Marquette, representing Beth Sholom Temple. Ishpeming; Msgr. Arnold L. Casanova, repsenting the Community Affairs Committee, Catholic Diocese of Marquette.

The first Board of Directors consists of the above incorporators and Rev. Leslie Niemi, Munising representing the Wisconsin-Upper Peninsula Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, whose resolution to participate in the corporation was ratified at their Pastors' Conference in Marquette, Dec. 17, 1969. Other church organizations are expected to apply for membership and will be welcomed by the incorporators.

More Than Books

When you mention a library, most people think only of books and magazines.

However, the Michigan Unit of the State Library in Lansing is much more than a collection of books.

If any of your ancestors were in Michigan before 1880, for instance, the Michigan Unit of the State Library would like to know about them. The unit's major purpose is to collect, and make available to the public, information about Michigan's past, present and future. In doing so, it has become recognized as a valuable research library for anyone studying Michigan or the Great Lakes.

Each year, historians and geneaologists come from all parts of Michigan and from as far as Columbia University to work in the unit. State officials also make heavy use of the collection.

The Michigan collection contains approximately 68,000 books, periodicals, documents and reels of microflim. It emphasizes Michigan but includes materials on the entire Great Lakes area as well. Magazines from all over the country are checked for articles about Michigan and family history, and an up-to-date index of the articles is maintained. The unit also maintains indexes of maps, manuscript collections, biographies of Michigan personalities and pamphlet collections of material on all aspects of Michigan's past and present.

Besides books and magazines, the Michigan unit collects and preserves maps (some dating from the 17th Century), old letters, reminiscences of early Michigan residents, census records, marriage and cemetery records, copies of probate records, microfilm, documents and newspaper clippings. The local and family history collection contains 30,000 books, reels of microfilm and periodicals on the families and localities of Michigan, as well as on New York, the Midwest and border states.

The unit also collects the histories of Michigan families on a form entitled Michigan Pioneer Record. This form, in addition to a similar form for young people entitled Michigan's Heritage: Your Family and Community History, and a general pamphlet, Your Family Tree, are available free to libraries, teachers, local organizations and individuals.

The unit has microfilm copies of partial or complete files of over 300 newspapers from nearly every county in Michigan, assembled in an effort to save many late 19th and 20th Century papers from extinction.

These papers, which provide a major source of contemporary information, are made available to the State Library from newspaper offices and public libraries. The State Library does much of its own microfilming and copies of the film are given to the library which owns the original or sold at cost to non-library owners. The microfilms are available for use at the State Library in Lansing or via inter-library loan through local public libraries.

The Upper Peninsula is well represented with microfilm copies of 33 newspapers from 12 cities.

As state government grows in complexity, it becomes increasingly important to have available in one place a complete collection of the publications of all the state agencies. There are 19 state departments and over 160 smaller bureaus and offices and many of them publish documents. The Michigan unit collects at least one copy of every document published by all branches of state government and has published an index to them since 1952. The Michigan documents collection contains over 25,000 books and pamphlets.

The Michigan unit of the State Library also publishes reading lists on many subjects. Within the past year the unit has published new or revised lists of films and novels about Michigan, biographies of Michigan personalities, books on Negroes in Michigan and a list of Michigan books for young readers. Copies of these lists are available free from the State Library.

Since many of the books are too valuable to to be loaned the unit does more research for patrons, as time permits, than is possible in public libraries. The unit receives 15 to 20 daily requests for help in research by letter, telephone and in person. Though primarily a non-circulating, research collection, the unit loans about 5,000 books annually.

Though most of the Michigan materials are in Lansing, the State Library hasn't forgotten the Upper Peninsula. The U. P. branch of the library at Escanaba has a collection of about 1,300 books on Michigan, subscriptions to 45 Michigan periodicals and a collection of Michigan documents.

In discussing the function of the State Library, Charles Harper, director of the U.P. Branch, asks that patrons go first to their local libraries for material. "If they do not find what they want," he advises, "they should have their library request the material from the State Library."

The functions and services of the State Library are much greater in scope than most citizens realize.

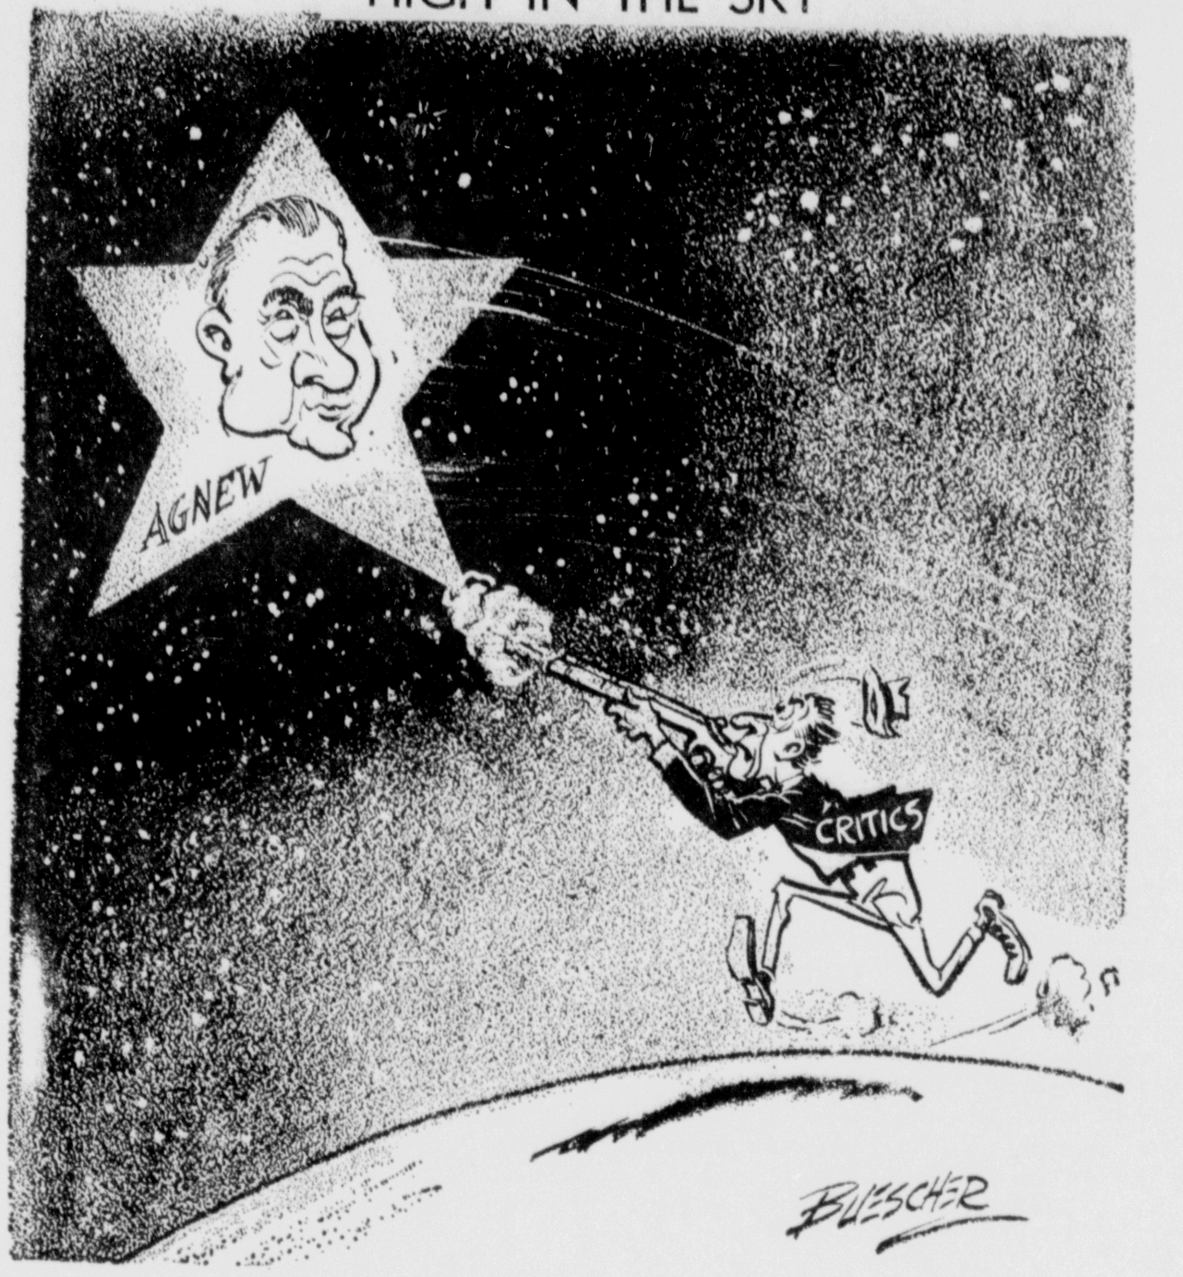
HIGH IN THE SKY



Private Profit Sharing Has Many Advantages

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Welfare State is undoubtedly here to stay for a while, no matter what philosophical objections may be urged aaginst it. But there is a point where the Welfare State must begin to consume itself, like a snake attempting to live by eating its own tail, and if the ever-busy social security "expansionist school" has its way we could reach this point even under the relatively conservative Nixon administration.

Fortunately the "expansionists" have not yet taken over in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Robert J. Myers, the chief actuary of the Social Security Administration, warns that the direct effect of "eliminating most private-sector efforts in the economic security field" would have a disastrous impact on the ability of the economy to expand, and would therefore tend to dry up the very sources of taxation that are needed to support state welfarism of any sort.

By limiting government old-age assistance and social security payments to "floor" dimensions, the government now encourages the growth of private pension plans and deferred profit-sharing. These, in 1969, had assets of more than $100 billion, most of which was invested in our going productive system.

If private pension and deferred profit sharing systems were to be killed by government assumption of the responsibility for pensions, complete medical care costs, "kiddicare" and so on, there would be a distinct shortage of investment funds for private industry.

One hopes, therefore, that the Nixon Administration will hold to the "floor" concept of social security, keeping it at a point where it will not menace the expansion of the economic base that is needed to support the government in the style to which, unfortunately, it has become accustomed. The snake has already swallowed as much of its own tail as it can without stopping the vital processes that keep it alive.

As a matter of record, the U. S. is doing very well under the present system of private assumption of many social security obligations.

The Council of Profit Sharing Industries, which represents 1,500 firms including such ponderable concerns as Sears, Roebuck, the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and the Continental Illinois National Bank, reports that five out of every six persons employed in U. S. business today are creating their own retirement funds as a supplement to government social security. Two out of every three workers are now covered by private pension funds. And one out of ten—which comes to a total of six million employes—is covered by a profit sharing plan.

The number of firms belonging to the Council of Profit Sharing Industries is actually only a very small part of the 77,000 companies which have deferred profit sharing programs.

Profit sharing trust funds now dispose of some $20 billion capital, which is invested in companies that add to the private payrolls of America and generate more profits to be shared. The private, non-insured pension funds of America account for $81 billion covering more than 43 million employes. These billions have also helped to create new factories and new services which, in turn, have expanded the economy whose taxes support the Washington bureaucracy.

Bion B. Howard, a Professor of Finance at the Graduate School of Management, Northwestern University, and Peter O. Dietz, an Associate Professor of Finance at the University of Oregon School of Business Administration, recently completed a study of the financial performance of profit sharing companies.

The Council of Profit Sharing Industries, which reports on their findings, says that the money-making record of profit sharing companies is "clearly superior to non-profit sharers." Whether there is a cause-and-effect relationship here can hardly be determined with any certainty; it could be that the good companies can afford to share their profits simply because they are naturally efficient money-makers, whereas the poor companies might find it difficult to go in for profit sharing simply because they can't make profits under existing market conditions.

But it stands to reason that profit sharing is good for employe morale, and therefore good for a company's unit productivity.

Luckily, the more extreme features of the House tax bill which would have soaked the beneficiaries of deferred profit sharing were killed.

The politicos who would force the government to assume all responsibility for old-age social security payments have not yet had their way. But beware, the government social security "expansionists" never sleep. They won't be happy until that snake has swallowed itself up to the midsection and died of torpor.

Mink Ski Pants Latest Luxury

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Eight million U. S. teen-agers now get weekly allowances from their parents, according to a survey by a soft drink company. The allowances averaged $5.

This may be the one item missing in the life of the woman who has almost everything: a pair of mink pants to lounge in after skiing—priced at a mere $3,500.

Long before the white man came, the Incas had government welfare programs in this hemisphere. The sick, the aged, and orphans drew food and supplies from government storehouses.

Are you a "gimp" without knowing it? There is a 50-50 chance that one of your legs is shorter than the other.

A man ahead of his time in many ways, Benjamin Franklin is now credited with being the inventor of the electric rotisserie and, perhaps, the electric motor. A reproduction of his machine, which he called "the electric jack" and planned to cook turkeys with, was built at West Virginia University and found to work.

Human hair is strong. If the hair on your head—but not my head—were shorn and woven into a rope, it could support a weight of 10 tons.

Highway safety slogan: "Men still die with their boots on, but too often the boot is on the gas pedal."

Here's a one-sentence summary of how to enjoy better health in a jittery age: "Breathe deeply, walk spiritedly, eat simply, relax periodically, think deeply, act sincerely, and you will sleep peacefully, because these are natural tranquilizers."

Americans are still a restless people. Each year more than 34 million move from one home to another.

Worth remembering: "You never get a second chance to make a good first impression."

Equal rights: Career women often complain they are paid less than men for doing the same work, but—according to the U.S. Census Bureau, single women over 45 make more money on the average than single men the same age.

It's a fact: The largest raindrops measure a quarter of an inch in diameter—until they splash. Apple trees belong to the rose family. The motor car population of San Francisco is now 8,000 to the square mile. The oceans contain enough salt to build a mountain higher than any on earth. Birds have one thing no other creature has—feathers.

It was La Rochefoucauld who observed, "When we do not find peace of mind in ourselves, it is useless to look for it elsewhere."

Dealer Arrested, Police Seize Art

DETROIT (AP) —A London exhibit depicting Beatle John Lennon's love life has led to the arrest of a Detroit art dealer in London.

Eugene Schuster, 33, who with his brother Monis owns the London Art Galleries in London, New York City and Detroit, termed the 14 lithographs 'a poignant comment on modern society."

The drawings, done by Lennon on his honeymoon a year ago, brought overflow crowds to Schuster's Bond Street gallery before London police seized eight of the lithographs.

The gallery remains open, and six of the 14 drawings of Lenon and his wife Yoko Ono, fully clothed, are still being exhibited.

Mrs. Eugene Schuster, who is in Detroit expecting her third child, said that "all this is unusual for us. We're usually very conservative and have followed the line of excellent modern painting. We got into some avant garde things only recently.

"In a way, it's very ironic," she continued. "We've been displaying about 80 major artists for several years and received little publicity. Now we're getting headlines over something like this."

The bidding:

West	North	East	South

Opening lead—jack of diamonds.

Dick Frey, for many years editor of the American Contract Bridge League's monthly Bulletin, was playing in a pair championship and held the West hand. His opponents quickly reached three notrump and Frey had to choose an opening lead.

On the bidding, it seemed probable that South had the A-Q of spades and that a spade lead would head right into the jaws of death. Frey's club holding furthermore indicated that dummy's long suit could be established by declarer in one fell swoop, and that a spade lead would therefore hand declarer a highly valuable tempo.

So Frey began to look for greener pastures. He considered leading a heart, but quickly dismissed this possibility since it would require East to have the Q-J.

The only other feasible suit, diamonds, finally caught Frey's attention. Here he needed only the queen to support his lead, so Frey plunked down the jack of diamonds.

East was Alphonse Moyse, former editor of the Bridge World magazine. He was delighted with the lead and enthusiastically supported it by playing the queen. Declarer realized what was going on and quite properly ducked in order to block the suit so that it could not be run.

Moyse continued with the ten and South ducked again. Having milked the suit dry, Moyse shifted to the eight of spades. Declarer played the nine, which lost to the ten.

After cashing the ace of diamonds, Frey still had to get a club trick and so the declarer eventually lost five tricks to go down one in a magnificently-defended hand.

Frey had led the only suit to beat the contract and Moyse had contributed his share to the defense by overtaking the jack and returning the ten. The spade shift at trick three was simply the icing on the cake.

Ann Landers

Caution Suggested In Choosing Names

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you printed a letter from a reader who said it was cruel of parents to saddle their children with peculiar first names just because they thought it was "different" or "amusing." In your reply, you mentioned Miss Ima Hogg and every third person in Texas wrote to say they knew her or were related to her.

I have just read an article in a magazine that says a capricious selection of names can seriously hamper a child's chances for happiness. One young fellow had a difficult time all through school because no one believed his name was Tonsilitis Jones. When he tried to enlist in the Navy he encountered the same doubts. Further investigation revealed that Tonsilitis had three brothers — Meningitis, Appendicitis and Peritonitis.

A psychologist pointed out that children sometimes develop life-long complexes because of their names. An outstanding example was a shy, introverted young woman whose moniker was Alpha Omega. When asked about her name she hesitatingly explained, "Mother didn't want me. She wished everyone to know I was her first and hopefully her last."

Is it any wonder that more than 50,000 people a year petition the U. S. courts to undo the damage done to them by their parents? I hope you print this letter for the benefit of Moms and Pops who are tempted to get overly cute at baby - naming time. — Plain Jane and Glad Of It

Dear Jane: Apparently Shakespeare was wrong. There's plenty in a name.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago a cousin of whom I have always been fond, took up with a woman who can't compare with his wife. No one could understand it. Five months ago his lovely wife gave him a divorce. Everyone assumed he would marry the other woman at the first legal moment. He has not done so. They still maintain separate apartments but they go everywhere together and are invited to some highly respectable places as a couple. I consider the relationeship immoral and have told him so. He offers no defense.

Please tell me the correct way to think about this offensive relationship. My cousin is no longer "cheating" since he is not a married man. I need your objective viewpoint. — Van Couver

Dear Van: Of course it is sad when people we admire disappoint us, but what your cousin does is his business.

I have no idea what his marriage was like. And neither do you. Now that he is unmarried, his relationship with the "other woman" is kosher. If you don't like her, don't see her. See him alone.

Dear Ann Landers: A relative has taken up painting as a hobby. She has just presented me with an enormous portrait of myself. It is an abstract monstrosity in the Picasso style — one brown eye and one blue eye, a grossly exaggerated nose and blue hair. It looks more like a cartoon than a painting. My husband and children couldn't stop laughing when they saw it. To make matters worse, this relative went to considerable expense to have the thing framed so, of course, we are expected to hang it.

We've had the picture three weeks and I've just about run out of excuses. The artist has been here several times and keeps asking about the portrait. How can I get out of hanging it — gracefully? — Harpooned

Dear Harp: You can't, so be a sport and hang the goldern thing. It should be a great conversation piece. After a couple of months move it to another room and then to the attic.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35c in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Self-Determination Of Nuns Noticeable

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholicism's nuns in the United States, once the silent and submissive symbols of Church stability, are now leaving the calling at a startling rate.

Although their reasons for leaving vary, the dominant new fact is that nuns are in the midst of a female rebellion—no longer willing to be told by male religious authorities how to live their lives to the last detail.

Believing that the struggle is getting them nowhere, many give up in sheer exasperation and drop out. Some believe the church itself is not relevant, or that it is not moving fast enough, or that they are not given a sufficient role in it. Others, of course, leave for a variety of personal reasons.

Ranks Thinned

The ranks fell last year from 176,000 to 167,000. The loss of 9,000 was more than double the decline in 1968, when 4,000 left.

The new cry of thousands of sisters is self-determination—as members of their particular orders, as individuals and as women—in altering their own once-strict rules.

"You just cannot have a man sitting in a chancery office telling you that you must all be in bed at 10 p.m.," remarked a sister involved in public education consultancy in New York City. About to leave her order after 30 years, she asked to be anonymous.

"We cannot stand this intrusion," she continued. "We have a terrible time in our schools with pastors who try to run the school but are not educated and don't know beans about education. This is the kind of thing we're rebelling against."

A Vatican decree in 1965 called for modernizing the religious orders. Most sisters eagerly welcomed it. They started their own housecleaning with plenary meetings, consultations, studies, revised constitutions and voting.

Work In Slums

Many nuns today work in slum areas, study nontheological subjects for doctorates at secular universities, belong to specialized interfaith panels, hold desks at big publishing houses, and come and go at all hours to all sorts of places beyond just the parochial classrooms or Catholic hospital wards down the street.

But their pace of life and general rules of behavior are still ultimately determined by male outsiders—from the local bishop to Rome—and many nuns find their own outlooks and activities expanding faster than the rules set by men allow. They become impatient and resign.

"As religious women in the church, we protest any domination of our institutes by priests, no matter what their hierarchical status," the National Coalition of American Sisters declared last summer when it formed with 1,100 members. It has since grown to 2,000.

Sister Margaret Ellen Traxler of Chicago, coalition chairman and a nun for 25 years, says her organization helps sisters defend themselves against external interference in establishing new patterns of convent life.

"We hold as inviolable the right of self-determination for religious women," she said.

Not All Agree

Not everyone agrees with the argument of the sisters' coalition.

"Actual interference? I think that's exaggerated," said the Rev. John Mescall, associated vicar for religious in the New York Archdiocese. "Most bishops give them a great amount of leeway. In many instances, it's the nuns who contact us for help."

"In the past," said Father Mescall, "sisters could honestly say they did not have the voice they should have been given. But now things have opened up very very quickly in the Church, with people able to do things they couldn't in the past."

One dramatic struggle over the matter concerns the California Immaculate Heart of Mary Sisters and the archbishop of Los Angeles, conservative Cardinal James McIntyre. The 500-member community of nuns revised its rules in October 1967. It switched from standard habits to skirts and blouses, allowed flexible prayer discipline instead of common chapel time, and made other changes.

Tried To Veto

The cardinal tried to veto the nuns' decisions, threatening to remove them as teachers in their scores of archdiocesan schools. Most of them quit the schools in June 1968 rather than give in. The controversy still rages, despite many appeals to the Vatican from both sides.

Fifty of the older nuns complied with Cardinal McIntyre. Of the 450 nuns who did not, some 300 say they are ready to form a new unofficial order of their own—perhaps this spring—while more than 100 have quit and about 40 others say they are about to do so.

"We have to take people as they are, and that includes bishops," an official from the Vatican, the Rev. Edward Heston, told a national meeting of mothers superiors in St. Louis, in an effort to mollify their irritation over the Los Angeles case. He observed that sisters will find freedom to go ahead in one place and be held back in another.

Referring to the centuries-old idealistic image of nuns as brides of Christ, one sister exclaimed after the meeting: "It's not our husband we're having trouble with, it's the in-laws."

The Rev. Johannes Neumann, church law professor at Germany's Tubingen University and an advocate of more freedom for nuns to run their own affairs, contends that the important place of women in modern society is not reflected in the Church.

"They still are refused real responsibilities. As a result and to a growing extent, educated Catholic women are beginning to be alienated from the Church because they do not find themselves taken seriously."

Using computers to tabulate the results, the U.S. Conference of Major Superiors of Women finished in 1968 a two-year survey of 135,000 American nuns—76 per cent of the total—to learn how the sisters thought they could best respond to the Vatican's renewal decree.

Most of the nuns responding in the poll regarded the Vatican document's appeal for "adaptation to the changed conditions of our time" as also a call for their own increased personal development away from a regimented existence.

One of the 40 sisters who prepared and conducted the survey was Sister Elena Malits, an attractive and scholarly nun who is thoroughly modern in outlook—yet satisfied to stay a member of her congregation, the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

"I live in a convent," said the 35-year-old woman. "But it's not a convent of the mind. I don't have a convent mental state, a fixed way, a confining experience."

She is finishing a doctorate in theology, meanwhile staying at a convent in mid-Manhattan with 15 other nuns, most of whom teach at a parochial school next door. She spends some of her free time skating in Central Park and recently took up Yoga. Sister Elena says she has already learned the difficult "perfect lotus" position.

"I feel I live creatively today as a human being," she said.

But three or four of her best friends have left her order. Some have married and have families.

"There is a certain sense in which their leaving hurts," said Sister Elena, "but I think there are some people who have to leave the institution."

Region Feels Grip Of Cold

Coldest weather so far this winter grips this region and the northern states today, with temperatures falling to an overnight low of 13 below zero officially in Escanaba last night.

At inland communities readings down to an unofficial 25 below zero were reported, but the cold had little effect on transportation other than to delay some vehicles in starting.

At the Escanaba city airport there was even an improvement in conditions reported by North Central Airlines.

Flights were on schedule and the slippery and sloppy wetness that created some problems on the runway were dried up by the zero cold.

Cold To Linger

The cold will linger at least through Tuesday, the U. S. Weather Bureau reports.

It was still 11 below at 6 a.m. today after a high Sunday of 12 above. The sub - zero temperatures, plus a brisk 12-mile-an-hour wind from the west-northwest, struck a deep chill through clothing and penetrated homes.

It will be fair and cold through Tuesday with a high of near 8 degrees above today and Tuesday. There is a 20 per cent possibility of some snow flurries. Snow on the ground at Escanaba is now to a depth of 13 inches.

Roads Clear

Main highways in the U.P. are generally clear except for some slippery spots in the northern sections along Lake Superior; while a number of county and side roads are icy in spots.

The long-range forecast issued by the U.S. Weather Bureau calls for continued below normal cold in the upper Great Lakes region to mid-February—but with below average precipitation for the same period.

The unseasonable cold exists in other regions of the continent and has brought complaint from vacationers in usually-sunny and warm Florida.

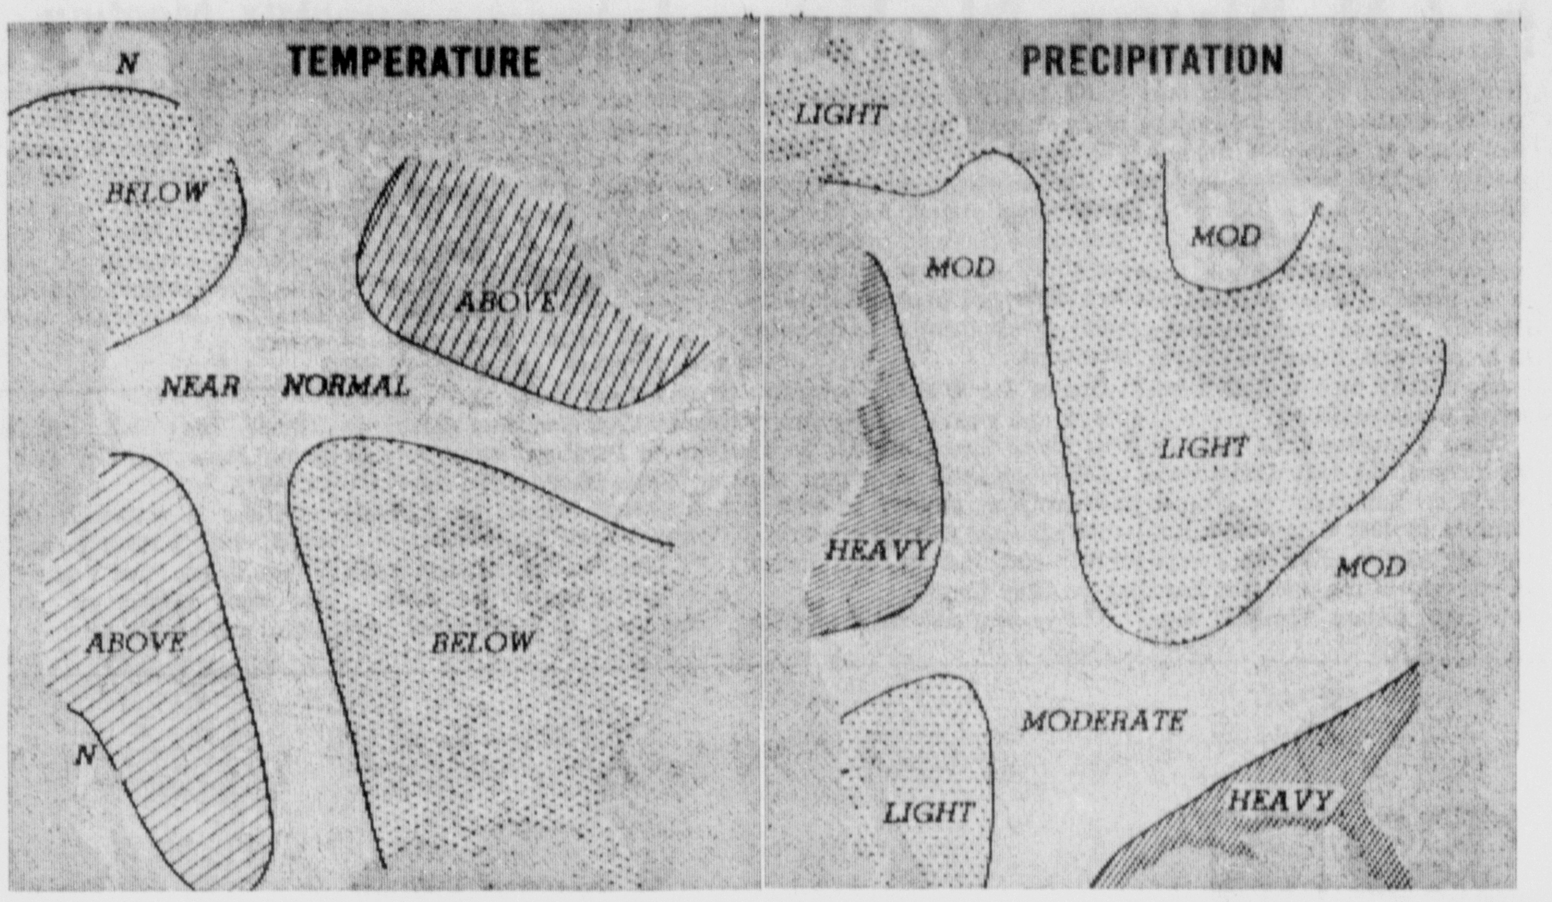
Mrs. Lucille Bonifas of Isabella in Delta County, who with other county residents are vacationing at Fort Pierce, Fla., has informed the Daily Press:

"It has been cool since Christmas here and we are waiting for the weather to get warm."

The sweater-weather in Florida, of course, does not prevent Mrs. Bonifas and the others from enjoying the outdoors, including an inspection of an unusual incident at the North Beach at Fort Pierce, where "hundred of whales beached themselves and died," Mrs. Bonifas reports.

Although not victims of the weather, the whales were unable to get back into deep water and died on the shore. "It took bulldozers two days to dig long holes and roll the dead whales in and cover them up."

Among Delta County people at Fort Pierce are Mr. and Mrs. Gust Soderberg of Masonville, Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Raymond of Garth Point, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bonifas of Garden Corners, Mrs. Esther Bonifas of Manistique, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bowerly, Mr. and Mrs. Hank Curgan and Ket Scott, all of Rapid River.



MINUS 13 DEGREES COLD was the official low temperature in Escanaba last night. The U.S. Weather Bureau reports the long-range outlook for this region is more cold to mid-February, with below normal snowfall. Deep cold of the current arctic blast has penetrated southward into the usually warmer gulf-coast, putting a chill on vacationers there. In Escanaba the high today and tomorrow is not expected to get above 8 degrees.

School Bonding Issue Approved

HERMANSVILLE — Voters approved a proposition Saturday that will allow the Hermansville Public Schools to borrow money and issue bonds for the purpose of paying part of the cost of erecting, furnishing and equipping a new elementary school building.

Clifford Luft, superintendent of the Hermansville public schools, announced today that a total of 71 per cent of the voters voted "yes" on the proposition.

Votes cast by property owners and electors not owning property were tabulated separately. The property owners approved the measure by a 197 to 81 margin and those not owning property voted 9-0 in favor.

Approval of the proposition gives the Hermansville Public Schools the right to borrow not more than $415,000 for the new building and acquiring additional land for site purposes and developing and improving the sites.

One pound of natural uranium has an energy potential equal to 1,500 tons of coal.

Broderson Given Delayed Sentence

John Carl Broderson, 19, of Norway, was given a one-year delayed sentence this morning in Delta County Circuit Court after pleading guilty to possession and control of marijuana.

Broderson was also placed on probation by Judge Benard Davidson who told him that the charges would probably be dropped if he didn't violate his probation.

Escanaba police arrested Broderson last October after he crashed through a plate glass doorway in a commercial establishment on Ludington St. He was slightly injured in the incident and was treated at St. Francis Hospital.

Police said that Broderson had taken LSD early Oct. 30 in an apartment in the rear of a building occupied by two Oneonta, N.Y. young men, Stanley Hojancki, 29, and Edward Scull, 19.

Both men associated with Broderson were found guilty of the use of marijuana and were sentenced previously in District Court by Judge Dean Shipman.

Other Cases

Three other young men were also sentenced this morning in Circuit Court.

Douglas Sealy, 17, of Gladstone was given a one-year delayed sentence and placed on probation after being found guilty of uttering and publishing (forged checks).

Joseph MacDonald was found guilty of two counts of breaking and entering, placed on three years probation and ordered to pay $368 restitution to Butch's Hardware and Superior Vending.

Clyde Craw of Marinette, Wis., was found guilty of breaking and entering, placed on probation for two years and ordered to pay $20.50 court costs. He is being taken to Wisconsin where he is wanted on a federal warrant.

Election Year Congress Back On Capitol Hill

ations bills—one of the hang-ups that kept the last session going until Dec. 23.

Two current appropriations bills, the veto threatened measure for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, and $1.8 billion in foreign aid funds, have not cleared Congress yet.

Measures Expire

The agencies involved are operating under resolutions which authorize spending at past rates. The stop-gap measures expire Jan. 30.

Among other major issues on the congressional agenda:

—Welfare legislation. Nixon proposed an overhaul to guarantee a minimum $1,600 a year for a family of four, with reduced assistance for the working poor.

—Crime. Bills are pending to provide new legal weapons for use against organized crime, and to combat narcotics traffic—while easing the penalty for personal use of marijuana.

—A revised administration bill to authorize $3.1 billion in federal aid for mass transit systems is ready for debate, and a four-year extension of federal aid to education will be soon.

—Nixon will be sending Congress his first package of farm legislation, and it is likely to produce partisan battle. Existing farm price support programs expire at the end of the year.

—A civil rights fight, possibly a filibuster, looms when the Senate takes up an extension of the Voting Rights Act sometime after March 1.

The administration wants to supplant an act aimed solely at protecting Negro voting rights in the South with one which would apply nationwide—but would curtail federal enforcement powers.

—Nixon is expected to send the Senate soon his nominee for the vacancy on the Supreme Court, in place of the rejected Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.

—Among other pending items: Electoral reform, an overhaul of the Post Office to turn it into a public corporation, a likely renewal of the controversy over the Safeguard antiballistic missile system.

Three Hurt In Traffic Mishap

Three persons were hurt, none seriously, in a collision of two cars at 4th Ave. S. and 15th St. at 8:20 p.m. Saturday.

Injured were Michael Siders, 23, of 506 S. 13th St., one of the drivers; and the other driver, Marguerite Larsen, 19, Escanaba Rte. 1, and her passenger, Gail Irving, 19, of 939 N. 20th St.

Police transported Miss Larsen and Miss Irving to St. Francis Hospital for examination.

No Evidence Of Genocide, Advisor Says

here just before Thant arrived.

The newsmen were first told that the trip had been canceled because the local governor was holding his daughter's wedding reception at Port Harcourt's hotel and there was no room for the newsmen.

Port Harcourt, the seat of Nigeria's oil industry and the country's second largest port, was taken by federal forces in May 1968. It is now the coordinating point for relief operations for the Biafran refugees.

Officials said 300 prisoners of war were released at Abakaliki, in East Central State, as the beginning of a general amnesty for Ibo tribesmen "misled into rebellion." Others would be freed later, the government said.

Signs of peace were starting to appear in Lagos. Street lights were switched on Sunday night for the first time in 2½ years, and people drove through the streets just to look at the spectacle. The sound of drums was heard again. They had been banned for years for fear they might be used to transmit harmful messages.

Authorities Praised

In Rome, Pope Paul VI praised Nigerian authorities for avoiding "violence and vendetta." He spoke a week after he had expressed fears that the defeated Biafrans would face genocide.

The Pope's statement last week set off demonstrations against him in Lagos. Nigeria has barred relief from the Vatican agency Caritas as well as other church relief groups because they aided the Biafran rebels.

An airplane operated by the Danish Red Cross returned to Copenhagen from Geneva Sunday night with 11 tons of medicine for Nigeria. The plane was reported to have received permission to land at Lagos last Friday, but the clearance was withdrawn the next day. The International Red Cross then asked that the plane return to Denmark because the Nigerian government has blacklisted the Danish Red Cross also.

Four British planes left London for Lagos during the night, carrying ambulances, trucks and 11 tons of medical supplies. Two British doctors and a nurse also left London, to be followed by another 23 doctors and 34 nurses. The British government supported the Nigerian federal regime during the war, and relief from Britain is being welcomed.

Otto Moravek Taken By Death

Otto Moravek, 74, of Rte. 1, Cornell died Friday at St. Francis Hospital shortly after admittance.

He was born Sept. 9, 1895 in Chicago and had resided in the Cornell area for about two years. He was employed as a pattern maker in Chicago until his retirement.

He is survived by one brother, Harold Moravek of Chicago.

The body was removed to the Allo Funeral Home and has been shipped to the Blake and Lamb Funeral Home, 3737 W. 79th St., Chicago where funeral services will be conducted on Tuesday. Burial will be in the Bohemia National Cemetery.

Foor Baby Is Taken By Death

Robert James Foor, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Foor of 618 Grant St., Marquette, died at birth in St. Marys Hospital on Wednesday, Jan. 14.

Surviving besides his parents are his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dupras, and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Dee Foor, all of Marquette.

Mrs. Foor is the granddaughter of Mrs. Georgianna Miron of 207 N. 9th St., Escanaba.

Burial was made in Holy Cross Cemtery.

Wilson Man Dies In U.S. 2 Traffic Mishap

Thomas W. Wandahsega, 49, of Wilson, became Menominee County's first traffic fatality for 1970 when he was killed early Saturday evening on U.S. 2 in the town of Wilson.

State Police said Wandahsega was walking down the middle of the roadway when he turned and stepped in front of a car being driven by Edward T. Pragacz of Ontonagon.

According to troopers, Pragacz was headed east when Wandahsega started to walk across the road, stopped in the middle, and all of a sudden he turned and stepped in front of the Pragacz vehicle.

An ambulance was called to the scene, and police said Wandahsega died enroute to the hospital.

Officers said no citations were issued and the driver was immediately released.

Wandahsega was born April 20, 1920 in Wilson and was a life-long resident of the community.

He is survived by his wife, Alice; seven sons, LeRoy, Thomas, Jr., Theodore, Timothy, Darryl and Russell; seven daughters, Mrs. Sally Halfaday, Elaine, Alma, Patricia, Donna, Verna and Rosalind; two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Smith and Mrs. Hazel Lamourie; two brothers, Frank and Fred; and 13 grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Boyle Funeral Home from 4 to 9:30 p.m. today.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Chapel with Rev. Carl Peppiatt officiating.

Burial will be in the Hannahville Cemetery.

Art Instructor Discusses Work With Children

Children's Art was the subject of the program at the meeting of the Bay de Noc Art Association held Sunday afternoon at the Medicenter.

Mrs. Ann Youngs, instructor of art in the Gladstone Public Schools, showed slides of Children's art work to illustrate her talk. Examples by children of various ages showed the freedom and oiginaliity of their work, and ways in which art in the schools can enrich studies in other subjects.

In the discussion which followed, much interest was shown concerning the importance and need for art education for children.

Some of the benefits pointed out by members of the group were: Stimulation of individuality and original thinking, the chance for problem solving, as well as the increase of knowledge and skills — all important in the world today.

Briefly Told

The Sportscraft Center at 1930 N. Lincoln Rd. was entered sometime last night by intruders who forced open a rear window in the building, it is reported by city police. They said that investigation disclosed a desk had been rifled but nothing is missing.

Jaycees Celebrate 50th In '70

Mayor Proclaims January 18-24 As Jaycee Week

WHEREAS, the civic bodies and service organizations of our community and the departments of the local government recognize the great service rendered to this community by the Escanaba Jaycees, and

WHEREAS, the United States Jaycees and its affiliated state and local organization have set aside the week of January 18-24, 1970, to observe the founding of the Jaycees and to commemorate such founding by the selection of an outstanding young man in this community as the recipient of the Distinguished Service Award, and

WHEREAS, the purpose of Jaycee Week is to focus attention on young men and the work they are doing in the fields of community development; youth and sports, and public affairs, and

WHEREAS, this organization of young men has contributed materially to the betterment of this community throughout the year.

THEREFORE, I, Cecil B. Chase, Mayor of the City of Escanaba, do hereby proclaim the week of January 18-24, 1970, as Jaycee Week and urge all citizens of our community to give full consideration to the future services of the Jaycees, and on this occasion, I extend to the leaders and members of the Escanaba Jaycees, my greetings, congratulations, and sincere wishes for continued success in serving their community.

Cecil B. Chase, Mayor

EVERY YEAR, more and more of Escanaba's young try their best to win honors in the national Punt, Pass and Kick contest which is sponsored locally by the Northern Motor Co., and the Escanaba Jaycees.

Founders Day January 22nd

Thursday, January 22, will be the 50th Anniversary of the founding of The United States Jaycees.

Founders Day will be celebrated in innumerable ways around the country as Jaycees pay tribute to Henry 'Hy' Giessenbier and to the men who initiated their respective local chapters.

In 1910, Giessenbier had a vision of young men being involved in their communities, and formed the Herculaneoum Dance Club in St. Louis, Missouri. At that time in the nation's history, they were concerned over preserving more conservative dance steps, such as the two-step, and preventing the serving of liquor at public dances.

In 1915, Giessenbier and his handful of friends became the Young Men's Progressive Civic Association, in 1917 Junior Citizens, and upon the urging of the first backer of the organization, Clarence Howard, the Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1918.

January 22, 1920, marked the day of the first caucus during which The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce was officially formed, with Giessenbier to be elected President at the First Annual Meeting the following June.

At the time of the first Caucus, there were 29 cities represented; today there are in excess of 6,000 chapters across the United States, totaling over 300,000 young men involved with today's community and social problems.

President Praises Local Jaycee Work

Bill Rodman
President
Escanaba Jaycees

As the Jaycees embark on their second fifty years of progress we can all look back on their many fine accomplishments. It is not the idea of the Jaycee, however, to look at the past. It is what lies ahead and where we go from here that counts.

The young men of this community must become aware of our community problems. As president of the Escanaba Area Jaycees I feel all young men should develop leadership so that they are not only aware of our problems, but an asset in the solution of them.

As leadership training through community development is the ultimate aim of the Jaycee, I wish to take this opportunity to invite all young men from 21 to 35 years of age to join this already dynamic group of young men. Contact myself or any of the other officers for any further information.

Jaycees Dedicated To Serve Humanity

As they culminate their 50th Anniversary celebrations from Jaycee Week to the Annual Meeting in St. Louis in June, where will the U.S. Jaycees be at the next 50 year mark, in the year 2020?

The answer to this million-dollar question lies in the last line of the Jaycee Creed . . . "service to humanity." Hopefully, the organization will still be performing vital services, in an even more unified and concerted effort across the country.

A major part of that answer lies in what local chapters are doing today in their communities . . .what a chapter is doing today to motivate and serve humanity . . . to respond to the critical human problems that plague the disadvantaged, disenfranchised, and disillusioned elements of the citizenry.

What the chapter does through second generation planning for an effective future, to prepare for the next 50 years, will determine where this entire organization will be at its 100th Anniversary.

The U.S. Jaycees represents a partly-tapped potential for significant social progress. It might be characterized as football team on the 50-yard line. There are 50 yards of experience behind, but another 50 lie ahead for creating environment for change through people.

Andre' E. LeTendre
President
The United States Jaycees

Each individual Jaycee, the young man next door, who is concerned about his community's future, his country's future, is the quarterback.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICES AWARDS were presented by the Jaycees at their annual DSA banquet March 14. Recognition was given (from left) Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Miron of Cornell, oustanding young farmer; Mr. and Mrs. Erwood Clade, Escanaba, distinguished young educator; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bink, outstanding young man of 1969. The Jaycee Creed:

We believe:
That faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life;
That the brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations;
That economic justice can best be won by free men through free enterprise;
That government should be of laws rather than of man;
That earth's great treasure lies in human personality;
And that service to humanity is the best work of life.

BPW Members Hear Of Special Ed. Program

"We have an exciting future ahead of us in education," said Richard Olson, director of Special Education for the Delta - Schoolcraft Intermediate School District, in his talk at the meeting of the Escanaba Business and Professional Women's Club, Tuesday evening at the Sherman Hotel.

"The 70's will see more change than has taken place in the first 60 years of this century and there will be more focus on the educational needs of children and on how children learn," he said.

Kennedy School

A program for trainable children is being conducted at the John F. Kennedy School and two instructors and two trained aides are employed there.

The department also has a program for educatable handicapped children and a program for deaf and hard of hearing children. In the orthopedically handicapped program the majority of the children are multi-handicapped and a special class is conducted in Marquette for those children who are severely handicapped. Olson said his department does not serve blind or partially sighted children as there is no facility in Upper Michigan to do this. These children are taught in Lansing.

400 Children

Olson said last year 400 children were served in special education of one type or another in the two-county area. This year they hope to serve approximately 900. Next summer they hope to operate a clinically oriented program with emphasis on a diagnostic testing program.

The department began with one professional staff member last year and this increased to 12 this year with two teacher aides, with further expansion planned for the coming year. There are approximately 2400 children within the two-county area that need service.

Mr. Olson said that for some time Upper Michigan has taken a back seat in some of the educational programs. The program is funded approximately three-fourths by state and one-fourth by local funds. For every year a district does not operate a program, it loses three state dollars for every local dollar invested.

District Re-organization

"Re - organization of local school districts is just a matter of time," said Olson and it has been said that there will be one county school district in a two-county area by the time the 1970's are over.

Olson said that by the end of the 70's, he believes that the state will finance special education programs in their entirety. Budgets will have to be justified to the legislature rather than to the people.

Leona Dougherty, a club member and one of the professional consultants in the special education program, introduced the speaker. The program was in charge of the Legislation committee, Mrs. Jean Kasun, chairman.

Mrs. Charlotte Barry and Mrs. Constance Marcouiller were accepted as members of the club.

Judge Marie Peters presented on behalf of the club, a B&PW pin with attached gavel to President Angeline Hakes to be worn during her term as president.

hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

You know how kids all want to play with the same toy at the same time . . .

Well, I solved this problem. I let the children set the timer that I use in the kitchen for the length of time that each one will get to play with the toy.

They can argue with mother as to the time, but with an impartial "machine" they cannot. Even the youngest, who can't even tell time yet, can be shown just how far to turn the dial to record the right number of minutes he has left before duty calls a halt to his pleasure.

Another little hint for anyone who has teenagers in the house is to set the timer for limiting those teenage phone calls.

Sure does make for a happier home.

I am on my way, Margaret, to get that timer and use it—especially for those phone calls that seem to go on and on.

School Planning Special Programs

With the winter term of the Community School scheduled to open Jan. 26, director Richard Bonifas has announced several special activities planned during the next few months.

The Philip Molby Marionettes of Detroit will present "Rumplestilskin" for area school children Monday, Feb. 16 at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The possibility of a series of spring concerts and a visit by the Michigan Artrain is being explored. The concerts would feature the Shiras String Quartet and be presented under the Young Audiences Program. The Michigan State Council for the Arts is being contracted relative to the Artrain coming to Manistique.

'Understand-In' Set

Bonifas is seeking assistance and suggestions on developing a Winter Olympics Program for area elementary students to include skating, skiing, tobogganing, snowshoeing and other outdoor activities.

Parents and teens are invited to an "Understand-In" next Monday, Jan. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The discussion type session will find teens and parents talking about their problems with each other in artificial family groups, Bonifas said. The session will be guided by a staff representative of Michigan State University and is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service.

In addition to the adult credit and enrichment classes which begin Jan. 26, and for which registrations are now being accepted, a marriage preparation course will begin Feb. 3. The class is open to all junior and senior high school students and any interested married couples. Also on Feb. 3, a Landowners Short Course will be formed in the auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The Great Decisions discussion series will begin Feb. 5 and a boat safety class, offered under auspices of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, will meet March 5.

NMU Course

Northern Michigan University will offer a four-hour credit course which will meet beginning Feb. 3 at 6:30 p.m. in Room 200 of the high school. The class, Independent Study in Speech Pathology, may be taken for either graduate or undergraduate credit.

The Linc Simulator will return to Manistique on Feb. 27 and tours will be arranged for any groups who wish to visit the driver training vehicle.

Further information on any of the scheduled or proposed programs may be obtained by calling Bonifas at 341-2195.

Man Gets Term In County Jail

Charles C. Kane Jr., 25, N. 5th St., pleaded guilty to simple assault and was ordered to serve 90 days in the County Jail, retroactive to Dec. 11, 1969. His plea came during last week's January term of Circuit Court with Judge William F. Hood of Manistique presiding.

Kane's charge was reduced from armed robbery to simple assault and stems from a Dec. 11 holdup of the Clark Service Station in Manistique. Within an hour of the robbery, Kane surrendered to police and returned the $75 he obtained during the robbery.

Bruce Allen Rivard of Westland will appear April 6 for sentencing on a charge of careless and negligent use of firearms. Rivard, originally charged with manslaughter, pleaded guilty to the reduced charge resulting from the Nov. 17 shooting and death of Kenneth S. Tufnell, 43, Manistique, in a hunting incident.

Circuit Judge Donald L. Munro of Ontonagon sat during a special session of Circuit Court and granted restrictive driving privileges to Paul P. Sablack, Rte. 1, and Charles W. Ramsden, Thunder Lake. Both men had driving privileges suspended when they pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

He also ordered that Kenneth J. Bernier, 26, a patient at the Traverse City State Hospital, be returned to Schoolcraft County in June to stand trial for murder in the shooting death of his mother, which occurred Oct. 23, 1959. Bernier is now competent to stand trial, a report from the Medical Superintendent of the hospital informed the Court.

A third court-appointed arbitrator will be named to facilitate settlement of the estate of the late Daniel Warshawsky, the court ruled. A judgment was granted Clyde Davis of Manistique clearing the title of some land he recently purchased.

Judge Munro will return to conduct another special session of Circuit Court on Feb. 5.

County Board To Reorganize

The reorganization of the County Board of Commissioners — a selection of a chairman and vice chairman — will take place during Tuesday night's meeting at the Court House. Lindsley Frenette is the current chairman and Russell Tennant vice chairman.

Board committees will be appointed and reports heard from the Road Committee, U.S. 2 Highway Committee, Airport and Welfare Committees, and from County Treasurer William Cowman.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Nursery School Aid Proposed

LANSING (AP) — State aid for nursery schools and extended food services to reach all underprivileged children have been recommended to the Legislature by the State Board of Education.

Under the nursery school proposal, some 15,500 children would be served at a cost of more than $3 million.

The school lunch program would cost some $10 million in state funds. It would be used, with additional federal funds, to reimburse local school districts with high concentrations of underprivileged children.

The eight new proposals by the board were in addition to 18 other specific recommendations made to the Legislature last year.

Other new proposals ask the Legislature to:

—Enable intermediate school districts to pay fringe benefits to teachers similar to local school districts.

—Require the county treasurer to provide the Department of Education with state equalized valuation figures instead of assessed valuation.

—Have the state pay election costs for first millage votes in a community college district. Repayment would be made from the first funds received when millage passes.

—Clear up annexation powers of community college districts.

—Provide for detachment of territory from a community college district as a means of promoting greater boundary coherence.

—Require an intermediate district to pay out-of-district tuition charges for students not living in a community college distruct.

Celibacy Rule Not Challenged

LONDON (AP) — A survey of European countries shows that the Roman Catholic rule on priestly celibacy, the subject of deep controversy in some areas, faces little challenge among the clergy elsewhere.

The question was brought forward forcefully this month when the Dutch Pastoral Council, a national body of clergy and laity, voted 90-6 in favor of ending the obligation of celibacy as a condition for ordination. There were 100 abstentions—the bishop members of the council.

Pope Paul VI has called the rule against marriage an "incomparable treasure" of the Latin Church, and has lamented as "our crown of thorns" the current controversy. In 1967 he rejected any change in canon law on the subject.

Since celibacy is a matter of the Church's universal discipline, the concensus is that, even if the Dutch bishops make the council's recommendation their own, they cannot change the law even for Holland on their own responsibility.

But recent Dutch surveys have shown 72 per cent of Dutch Catholics, including clergy, want the celibacy rule ended.

In a few European countries an increasing number of priests are giving up active office, many to wed. Four hundred left in Holland in two years; around a hundred left last year in Britain. But most of Europe's priests are content with their lot or at least keep silent. And most of those who have left say they would continue to exercise their priestly functions or return to them, if permitted to do so as married men.

Some bishops worry more about the effect all this talk may have on recruiting clergy. Many young men, they say, are adopting a wait-and-see attitude toward the celibacy question before committing themselves to the priesthood.

The German news magazine Der Spiegel says about two-thirds of the priests it polled favored lifting the relationship between priesthood and celibacy. But many said they did not want marriage for themselves.

Constitutional Guarantee Against Pollution Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, charging that man may pollute himself into disaster by the end of the century, called today for a constitutional amendment guaranteeing that "every person has an invironment."

In a speech prepared for Senate delivery today, the Wisconsin Democrat said "the crisis of man's environment is the biggest challenge facing mankind."

As part of protecting man's right to clean air and water, Nelson listed besides a constitutional amendment several other proposals, including development of pollution—free automobiles, elimination of nonreturnable bottles, cans and jars.

The pollution legacy of the past, Nelson said, "adds up each year to 172 million tons of smoke and fumes, 7 million junked cars, 20 million tons of paper, 48 billion cans and 28 billion bottles."

There is, however, a new public awareness of the pollution threat, the senator said, that may be the key to providing a decent existence for people.

"But, lest anyone be misled or caught unaware," he went on, ". . . a victory will take decades and 10s of billions of dollars. Just to control pollution, it will take $275 billion by the year 2000 . . . equivalent to the Defense expenditure for the next four years."

"More than money, restoring our environment and establishing quality on a par with quantity as a goal of American life will require a reshaping of our values, sweeping changes in the performance and goals of our institutions, national standards of quality for the goods we produce, a humanizing and redirection of our technology and greatly increased attention to the problem of our expanding population."

In his speech, which was full of doomsday quotes from scientists to comic strip characters and folk singers, Nelson also proposed elimination of all hard pesticides; development of antipollution detergent standards and installation of antipollution devices on jet aircraft.

Other proposals include expansion of family planning and population research programs; creation of an environmental advocate agency; a moratorium on further development of the undersea outer continental shelf; development of a comprehensive environmental education program, and using the Highway Trust Fund to develop rapid transit systems.

Also necessary, he said, is the long range development of broad new national policies on land use, mineral use, wetlands development and the establishment of a process for using natural resources.

Nelson's speech came amid these other indications of growing public concern over threats to the environment:

—The nation's 43 commercial airlines will be told by the government Tuesday they must end sky pollution with jet engine smoke by 1972 or face punitive federal legislation.

—A series of nationwide campus rallies is being organized for April 22 by opponents of environmental pollution.

Viet Cong Mine Rips Cadet Unit

SAIGON (AP) — A powerful Viet Cong claymore mine exploded in the midst of a column of South Vietnamese officer cadets near Saigon today, killing 18 Vietnamese and wounding 35.

Killed were 16 cadets at the Thu Duc Military Academy, one officer instructor and one civilian. The wounded were 34 cadets and an officer instructor.

A company of 150 to 200 cadets had just begun a morning training exercise when the mine was electrically detonated by remote control and sprayed hundreds of shrapnel pellets into the column.

The academy is six miles north of Saigon.

Attacks Increase

Only light, scattered ground action was reported elsewhere, but the U.S. Command reported a sharp increase in enemy rocket and mortar attacks in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon.

Headquarters said that in the 24 hours up to 8 a.m. today, 30 rocket and mortar attacks were reported throughout South Vietnam, 21 of them in the delta.

No Americans were reported killed, but 27 were wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were described as light over-all.

The U.S. Army announced that a rescue helicopter had pulled three American helicopter crewmen to safety last week from within 50 feet of a North Vietnamese patrol after the Americans had evaded enemy patrols for three days. A fourth man was still missing.

Rescued were Capt. Bruce E. Porter, 23, of Hainesport, N.J., the pilot of the helicopter gunship; WO Larry M. Ingle, 24, of Lima, Ohio, the copilot; and Spec. 4 Richard Tipple, 20, of Lancaster, Ohio, a door gunner.

Porter and Ingle were reported in satisfactory condition in a hospital, while Tipple did not have to be hospitalized. Their helicopter crashed into a mountainside 325 miles north of Saigon on Jan. 11 during monsoon rain and low visibility.

Helicopters Downed

The U.S. Command also reported three more American helicopters were shot down last weekend and five of the crewmen were wounded. This brought the total number of U.S. planes and helicopters lost in Vietnam to 6,333, valued at between $6 billion and $7 billion, a U.S. spokesman said.

American troop strength in Vietnam has dropped to its lowest level since Oct. 28, 1967, the U.S. Command said. A weekly summary put U.S. strength at 465,200 men, down 2,300 from the previous week and 18,800 below the current authorized ceiling of 484,000. A spokesman said the drop was not related to the withdrawal of 50,000 troops scheduled to start next month, but was the result of replacements from the United States and troops being sent home after completion of their tours of duty being temporarily out of balance.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's reorganization of South Vietnam's military commands gained momentum with the disclosure of more changes and the promotion of 10 colonels to brigadier general.

The reorganization is designed to give the armed forces a new and more aggressive leadership of young, hard-driving officers.

Sources said that among the 10 colonels picked for promotion were Tran Van Hai, director of the national police who deal with Viet Cong political agents and saboteurs, and Do Kien Nhieu, the mayor of Saigon.

In the latest command changes, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh moves from commander of the Saigon Military District to commander of the 2nd Corps Military Zone covering the Central Highlands.

Brig. Gen. Nguyen Vinh Nghi, commander of the 21st Infantry Division in the Mekong Delta, is replacing Minh as commander of the Saigon district, sources said.

The shift eases Lt. Gen. Lu Mong Lan out of the Central Highlands command, where he is said to have been inefficient and lack luster.

There was no immediate word of a new assignment for Lan, or who would replace Nghi as commander of the 21st Division, rated among the better of South Vietnam's 10 infantry divisions.

Thieu began the reorganization Saturday with replacement of two other generals in the Mekong Delta to put more drive into government forces facing a growing North Vietnamese buildup. Thieu also replaced 14 of the country's 44 province chiefs.

Women Lose Equality War

DETROIT (AP) — If men don't think women are worth having around, they should try holding each other's hands.

That argument won applause, but lost when the votes were counted Sunday at the special Democratic State Convention on Political Reform.

The women's caucus tried valiantly to gain convention acceptace of proposals to guarantee females half the seats on many party councils and delegations.

When that proposal failed, the women said they'd accept one-third of the seats.

Noting 1970 is the 50th anniversary of the 19th amendment —which gave women the right to vote—the caucus pushed for "equality." Failure to approve the proposal might "alienate hundreds of thousands of women who look to the Democratic party for leadership," one proponent argued.

"If you want to be in the party, get in here and do your share," shot back a male delegate.

"We ask no special consideration," countered a woman. "We ask for full participation."

"If we have one - third women, one - third blacks and one-third Polisy, where in hell are the hillbillies going to go?" quipped Mayor John Canfield of Dearborn Heights.

The one-third provision failed also.

Undaunted, the women's caucus pledged to "continue to meet to serve our goals."

LOSE IN "DUST" — Leaders, including Don Bugay of Gladstone, leave others behind in trail of snow flurries during yesterday's Hodag 50 snowmobile race. The Hodag 50 is the world's largest snowmobile marathon. The race is 68 miles long, and is run over a cross-country course. Bugay, a veteran snow racer, finished fourth out of 581 competitors who raced in the classic. The severe cold and course took its toll as two drivers were injured and several became frostbite victims during the big race. (AP Wire-Photo)

Bugay Wins Class In Hodag Classic

RHINELANDER — Don Bugay of Gladstone passed Doug Hart of the Green Bay Packers on the final lap and flashed across the finish line to take the Class D championship sprint race during the Hodag Snowmobile Races Sunday.

Bugay, driving a Ski-Doo, also captured fourth place Saturday in the 68-mile, Class 5 modified competition, featuring the largest and most powerful vehicles.

"It was a pretty good race," said Bugay, who used a 90 horsepower machine to finish a close three minutes behind the leader.

Bugay said that snowmobile drivers and fans braved subzero temperatures Sunday for the finals of the Hodag sprints, run on a new 1.8 mile track just north of Rhinelander, Wis. "Almost all the drivers suffered some form of frostbite," Bugay said.

Frigid Day

The temperature was 28 below zero when the races began Sunday morning, and it never climbed higher than one below. Some members of the crowd, which was estimated at between 30,000 and 35,000, stayed inside their cars to watch the races, while others lined the kidney-shaped track.

Robert Eastman of Roseau, Minn., and Jerry Rychlock of Three Lakes, Wis., provided the brave racing fans with some hot racing.

Eastman zipped across the line of the gruelling Hodag 59 snowmobile marathon Saturday in one hour, twelve minutes and nine seconds to set the pace in the top-flight competition and in the process set the fastest time among the 581 contenders in this year's 68-mile grind.

Breezes Home

Rychlock, a hometown favorite, breezed to victory in the stock Class D field with an elapsed time of 1:38.53. Of the 581 drivers entered in the various divisions, 336 finished.

Sunday's marathon winner was Canadian Duane Eck of Valcourt, Quebec, who pushed his machine across the finish line first in a race marred by two mishaps injurying two drivers, both from Roseau, Minn.

Greg Grahn, who earlier won the class 3 race, suffered an apparent broken arm in a three-vehicle pile-up. Bob Eastman, winner of Saturday's Hodag 50 cross country marathon race, was injured when struck by another vehicle as he fled after his snowmobile stalled in the middle of the track. The two were released from a hospital after treatment.

Sunday's competition in ten separate divisions featured 150 drivers who qualified in Friday's time trials. Some racers said they hit speeds as high as 80 miles per hour on straight stretches of the track. Each race covered five laps.

Other winners in the modified division were Don Omdahl of Roseau, class 1; Ynon Duhamel, Valcourt, class 2; and Dan Oberg, class 4.

Ray Jackson of York, Pa., placed first in the non-production model class and Gail Reinhold of McHenry, Ill., was the women's division winner.

In the stock division, winners were Jan Hedlund of Roseau, class B, and Dave Thompson of Thief River Falls, Minn., class C.

Fire Danger Grows As Cold Increases

These cold winter nights, it is important that Escanaba area householders be doubly watchful for home fire dangers.

Fire Chief Palmer Derouin lists three steps the householder can take at bedtime to protect his family against fire.

- Put room heaters out or on low. Leave dampers partly open after banking coal or wood fires. Open bedroom windows when using fuel-burning heaters in bedrooms, to protect against carbon monoxide.
- Sleep with bedroom or hall doors closed. These can hold back fire until the family escapes.
- If windows are emergency escape routes, be sure all members of the family are trained to use them, and make sure storm windows open easily.

No Open Flame

Derouin adds that if water pipes freeze, a homeowner should not use a blowtouch or other flame to thaw them. Hot water or U-L labeled electric devices made for the purpose should be utilized instead.

Emphasizing that fire dangers rise as temperatures drop (and Escanaba posted its season's low this week), Derouin advised all residents to check their heating systems.

In the case of central heating setups, furnace, flue pipes and chimmey should be inspected to be sure they are in good condition and that enough air for combustion and ventilation is available. Trash, papers, paint, etc., should be kept at a safe distance from the furnace, and covered metal containers should be used for ashes, when coal or wood are the fuel.

Greater Safe Guards

Where fixed or portable room heating units are in use, even greater safeguards must be employed. Derouin stressed the need to keep heaters out of halls; away from doors or stairs, where they might block escape; and away from beds, upholstered chairs, curtains and clothes racks.

Gasoline or kerosene should not be used on wood or coal fires, and householders should avoid any chance of mistakenly mixing gasoline with heater fuel. Electric heaters should not be overfused, and fireplaces should be equipped with screens.

All heaters should be checked and cleaned reguarly, should be cold when filled with fuel, and overfilling should be avoided. It is important that heaters be level, as well.

As Derouin noted, "it's good to be warm — but essential to be safe."

Israel Continues Egyptian Attacks

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel kept up its attacks on the heartland of Egypt Sunday, striking military targets within a few miles of Cairo and the industrial city of Helwan, military spokesmen said. It was the fourth penetration of the Nile Valley in less than two weeks.

Other Israeli aircraft were reported to have hit Egyptian positions at the northern and southern ends of the Suez Canal.

In the major attack, Israeli planes bombed "a large Egyptian military base" at Huckstep, 12 miles east of Cairo, and an equipment and ammunition storage area three miles from Helwan, the spokesmen said.

The Egyptian command acknowledged the attack at Huckstep, said the raiders did no damage, and claimed that Egyptian antiaircraft fire downed one Israeli Skyhawk and damaged another in the southern sector of the Suez Canal.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat met in Beirut with Maj. Gen. Jean Jimein, the new commander of the Lebanese army. Observers believe they are trying to prevent further deterioration of relations between the Lebanese government and the guerrillas operating against Israel from Lebanese territory.

The guerrillas have charged they are being denied freedom of movement and action against Israel because the Lebanese fear Israeli reprisals.

In Amman, the Palestine Armed Struggle Command reported that Arab guerrillas shelled an Israeli settlement south of the Dead Sea with heavy mortars for 90 minutes Sunday and also an Israeli army camp south of the Dead Sea.

A spokesman said guerrillas also attacked Israeli vehicles, patrols and advanced outposts in the northern Jordan Valley, inflicting heavy losses on the Israelis. He said one guerrilla was killed.

The Beirut newspaper Al Nahar also reported the Lebanese government is having second thoughts about the red carpet treatment it has been giving Christian Belon, the Frenchman who hijacked a TWA jet to Beirut. Foreign Ministry officials were reported fearful of damage to Lebanon's role as the communications hub of the Middle East.

Belon, who said he hijacked the Boeing 707 on Jan. 8 to focus world sympathy on Lebanon and the Arab cause, was released from jail on $8 bail, invited to Interior Minister Kamal Jumblatt's palatial mountain home for a week's vacation, and called a hero by newspapers and politicians.

Building Slump Blamed On War, Nixon Policies

HOUSTON (AP) — The nation's home builders heard the Nixon administration policy and the Vietnam war blamed Sunday for the present slump in home building.

Two members of the Nixon cabinet reply today at the annual convention of the National Home Builders Association meeting here. They are George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, and George P. Schultz, secretary of labor.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., told the group Sunday that the Vietnam war was causing the drop in money available for home builders. His remark brought applause.

Housing starts in the nation started falling late last year and some builders predicted they would fall to an annual rate of 100,000 by the next quarter.

Louis Barba, president of the association, said pending action by the Federal Reserve Board to let banks pay a higher interest rate to commercial passbook savers and holders of certificates of deposits would cause a flight of deposits from savings and loan associations which provide most of the money for home building.

He said savings and loan associations could not readily raise their interest rates because the bulk of their funds are tied up in long term low-interest mortgage loans.

"Such action would do massive damage to the housing of Americans and further hurt the home building industry which already bears the major burden of the anti-inflation fight."

President Nixon sent a telegram to their group in which he told them that he was fully aware of their problems of tight money and high costs.

"There is no way in which conditions will become bettter for the housing industry unless the nation's number one economic problem (inflation) is faced squarely and dealt with effectively," the President said in a telegram.

Sen. Yarborough said despite a rise in salaries, "many people earning what not long ago we thought were good salaries we find now are not earning enough money to buy a house. If decent housing is not available to all, it is not safe for those who have it now."

Another speaker, Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said, "To have housing in such a prostrate condition at a time when all other segments of the economy are booming...makes it obvious that our priorities are out of order and our economy is on a lopsided course."

two-party system is weak enough as it is."

"If you impose this on the black community, you're not going to broaden or strengthen the party," said Nelson Jack Edwards, a black UAW official. "You're going to tear it asunder."

Note High Costs

Other opponents noted the higher costs of campaigning both in a general and primary election.

The convention turned down a compromise plan, mixing the primary concept with a revised convention system, that one delegate said could "bring into the party those who were disgusted by the spectacles in Chicago and Miami" during the 1968 national party conventions.

Approved was a plan for electing precinct delegates, who subsequently name national convention delegates, in the spring of a presidential election year. Currently the precinct delegates are lected more than two years before the national conventions.

Proponents said such a system would "provide us with more effective, issue and program oriented, responsible and democratic parties."

Adjourn Early

Delegates adjourned the session earlier than expected, but not before Haber told them: "We have an emergency situation—we're broke."

Convention facilities cost an estimated $9,400 and publication of the commission's massive reform report—measuring at least 1-inch thick, with small print—lopped another $10,000 from party finances, he said.

Collection baskets were passed through the delegations along with Haber's notation:

"Let's not interfere with the work of the convention—soft money does not make any noise."

District Court

Louis J. Broussard, Marquette, has not pleaded guilty to negligent homicide as reported in Saturday's Daily Press. He asked for a preliminary examination. He has been released on $2,500 bond. Judge Dean Shipman disqualified himself from the case, because the deceased was a close friend.

Gogebic College Dumps Norsemen By 95-82 Margin

GLADSTONE—After a foul-filled first half, the Gogebic College basketball team came to life in the final 20 minutes and scored a 95-82 victory over the Bay de Noc Community College Norsemen in a game played Saturday night in the Gladstone High School gymnasium.

A total of 55 fouls were called in the game, 37 of which came in the first half. The Norsemen used the fouls to their advantage in the first half and held a 44-41 margin at intermission, but when two players eventually fouled out in the second half, the fouls turned against the Norsemen and they came up on the short end of the score.

Bay College hit on 11 straight free throws in the first ten minutes of play and were leading by a 21-20 margin. Nine of their first 11 poiints came at the charity stripe.

Gogebic pulled ahead by a 32-23 margin with about eight minutes left to play in the first half, but the Norsemen put on a rally of their own and took a 34-33 lead with 4:48 left and held on to hold the three-point margin at intermission.

Gogebic came on strong in the early minutes of the second half behind the shooting of Brian Ciesielzyck, a former Class C All-.P. cager from Bessemer, but the Norsemen hung in there and the score was tied 58-58 with 13:10 left in the game.

Ciesielzyck got the Samsons rolling again from that point and they soon enjoyed an 18-point spread over the Norsemen.

Ciesielzyck topped all scorers in the game with 27 points while his teammate Dennis Routheaux chipped in with 24. Also hitting in double figures for Gogebic were Tony Trolla with 12 points, all from the free throw line, and Dennis Oja with 11.

Steve Fisher paced Bay College with 26 points while Mike Sigfrids helped out with 15 before fouling out in the second half and Mark Weber had 13.

The Norsemen will remain idle until Jan. 26 when they will take their 1-5 record into a game against the St. Norbert junior varsity at Green Bay.

Big Bay Wins 7th Straight

PICKFORD — The Big Bay de Noc Black Bears ventured out of the confines of their own court for the first time this season and found things no different in the outside world.

Big Bay found the Pickford High School court to their liking and handed their hosts an 82-43 defeat for their seventh straight victory of the season.

The Black Bears opened up a 23-11 lead in the first period and were never in serious trouble after that. Big Bay's press was effective and their running game worked to perfection, according to Coach Dave Pelletier.

Bill Hartman led the way in the scoring column for the Black Bears with 30 points while Herb Pomeroy chipped in with 17 points, John Lewandowski 14 and Kim Hartman 13. Their fifth starter averaging over 10 points a game, Dave Hardwick, sat the game out with a sprained ankle.

Big Bay made 34 of 77 attempts from the field in the game for 45 per cent, while Pickford could only manage 14 of 56 field goal attempts. Lewandowski's 20 rebounds also gave the Black Bears a big edge in that department.

The Pickford junior varsity scored a 69-40 victory in the preliminary game.

Illinois Cagers Stay Unbeaten In Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois takes the Big Ten basketball lead into hibernation for a couple of weeks after a blazing start of five straight victories including three on the road.

The Illini ballooned their lead to 5-0 with a 75-73 victory at Michigan Saturday while idle Iowa remained the only other undefeated team in the conference with a 3-0 record.

Michigan State suffered its first loss by dropping an 85-78 decision at Minnesota, and Ohio State remained very much in contention with a 93-67 victory against winless Northwestern.

Although Illinois enjoyed leads as big as 16 points, the Illini had to kill off the final seven seconds to clinch the victory. Michigan scored nine points in the final minute of play as Randy Crews, Fred Miller and Mike Price sat on the sidelines after having fouled out.

Greg Jackson topped Illinois with 26 points but scoring honors went to Michigan's big Rudy Tomjanovich who banged in 31 points.

Dave Sorenson with 26 points and Jim Cleamons and Jody Finney with 23 each paced Ohio State to a one-sided victory over Northwestern. Just as big a contribution to the Buckeye victory was Ohio State's defensive work against Dale Kelley who was limited to 9 points. Kelley had been averaging 34 points a game, second only to Rick Mount of Purdue in the Big Ten.

Minnesota's five starters all hit in double figures with Larry Mikan scoring 26 to parade the Gophers past Michigan State. Ralph Simpson again topped the Spartans with 26 points.

Big Ten action slows down considerably this week with only three conference games on the agenda and all of them coming Saturday with Michigan at Michigan State, Ohio State at Minnesota and Purdue at Northwestern.

Nonconference action finds West Virginia at Ohio State tonight, Notre Dame at Michigan State Tuesday and Tennessee Tech at Iowa Saturday.

Illinois doesn't make another appearance until Jan. 31, when the Illini tangle with Notre Dame in a Chicago Stadium doubleheader which also features Loyola and Marquette.

The Illini then return to conference play Feb. 3 when they take on Wisconsin at Champaign.

Western Stars Win AFL Clash

HOUSTON (AP) — Big Jim Otto saw the American Football League begin and he was there when it died.

The Oakland Raiders center played in the first AFL All-Star game. He participated Saturday in the Astrodome in the 10th All-Star contest-the final effort of the league.

The West All-Stars, led by passing of San Diego quarterback John Hadl, defeated the East 26-3 before 30,170 fans.

Next season the AFL becomes the American Conference of the merged AFL and National Football league.

"This is all kind of touching to me," Otto said. "I saw it all start and now it's all ending.

"I don't think we'll lose our identity though. The rivalries will always be there. Some of the younger guys might not feel it so much but the older ones will."

Hadl expressed disappointment that the leagues merged.

"I hate to see us lose our identity," he said. "I hate to see us split up. It just won't be the same."

Hadl, who completed 18-of-26 passes for 224 yards and one touchdown, was named the Most Valuable Player in the All-Star game.

Lance Alworth, the gifted San Diego receiver who caught a 21-yard scoring pass from Hadl, said it "sure was good to go out winning.

"At least we went out with our heads up instead of down like some people said they would be when we got started," Alworth said.

Alworth was referring to the last two Super Bowl games in which AFL teams whipped favored NFL clubs.

"I don't know what they will call the championship game next year," he added.

Alworth admitted the AFL improved with age.

"We thought we were as good as anyone around when we first started," he said. "But I would hate to go out there and play now knowing only what I knew then."

Davis, Wake Forest Dump Seventh-Ranked Tar Heels

By The Associated Press

You can't keep a good man down . . . even if you kick him in the head.

Charlie Davis was knocked cold by an errant North Carolina foot, but came back to complete a heady, 34-point performance as Wake Forest spilled the seventh-ranked Tar Heels 91-90 in college basketball Saturday.

"This was one of the most exciting games I've ever played in," said Davis. "This knock doesn't feel good right now, but I'll gladly take a couple of more knocks for a couple of wins."

Davis was diving for a loose ball when he accidentally caught Jim Delaney's foot. Davis blacked out as the blow sent him skittering. However, some smelling salts revived him and he finished out the remaining minutes of the contest.

Another Top Ten team was burned during the weekend as fired-up St. Joseph's Pa., lead by Dandy Danny Kelly, startled eighth-ranked Davidson 90-81.

In other action involving basketball's elite, top-ranked UCLA, second-ranked Kentucky, fifth-ranked New Mexico State and 10th ranked Marquette played to form.

UCLA squashed Loyola of Chicago 94-72; Kentucky ripped Tennessee 68-52; New Mexico State beat Hardin-Simmons 83-75 and Marquette turned back Southern Illinois 67-57.

"The first half was definitely our best half of the year," said Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina after the Tar Heels had built an imposing 16-point lead. "If we played this well in every game, I wouldn't be concerned. But Wake just gave a super performance . . . we missed three easy shots in the beginning of the second half and that's when Wake Forest got the momentum."

Davis blazed away at the basket for 21 second half points until cooled off by the Delaney knockout.

Coach Jack McCloskey of Wake Forest: "The victory has to do a lot for us moral-wise. We got behind . . . but we did a great job of coming back."

Over in Philadelphia, King Kelly scored 33 points and dribbled out the clock as St. Joe's knocked off Davidson in the second game of a Palestra twin bill. Penn took the opener from Massachusetts, 75-65.

"There was some talk among the guys and we said this was not a team (Davidson) we could beat on talent alone," said Kelly. St. Joseph's is known for teams that put out that little bit extra. We felt if we put out extra, we could win."

Kelly's scoring and eye-popping passing and Mike Hauer's 27 points helped the Hawks come from behind late in the game.

"Tonight he (Kelly) was as good as anyone we've seen all year," said Coach Terry Holland of Davidson. "The jump shots—and the range—he made in the second half were unbelievable."

Sidney Wicks scored 20 points and Curtis Rowe struck in 18 as UCLA swept to it its 12th straight victory in the curtain-raiser of a Chicago Stadium doubleheader. Notre Dame beat Duquesne 82-66 in the second game.

Kentucky sprinted to No. 13 in a row despite Tennessee's ball control tactics. Dan Issel scored 28 points for Kentucky. Jim England had a game-high 29 Tennessee.

Jimmy Collins scored 30 points to lead New Mexico State's triumph and Dean Momminger had 19 points in Marquette's succcess.

Two Second Ten teams were upset as Georgetown, D. C., stunned 13th-ranked Columbia 72-68 and unheralded Stetson downed 18th-ranked Louisville, 87-80.

Elsewhere, 14th-ranked Ohio University defeated Toledo 88-79; Washington, tied for 15th with Penn, beat Oregon 53-46 and No. 17 Illionis nipped Michigan 75-73

Red Sox Star Opposes Flood

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski, the Boston Red Sox' $130,000 a year slugger, opposes Curt Flood's court challenge of baseball's reserve clause and wants a poll of all major league players to determine their feelings.

Yastrzemski called for a poll in a weekend letter to Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association.

The Boston outfielder noted that the association's board voted 25-0 "to give full support to Curt's legal action, including helping him obtain the best legal counsel available and financially assisting him."

"That backing should never have been given to Flood," Yastrzemski said in expanding on his letter to Miller. "This is what bothers me and I'm going to fight it. Personally, I am against what Curt Flood is trying to do because it would ruin the game.

The three-time American League batting champion and the 1967 most valuable player said he would abide by any such vote. However, he said he would quit the association if the body refuses to take such a vote.

Flood has filed a federal court suit challenging the reserve clause, which binds a player to the club holding his contract. The $90,000 a year outfielder decided on the suit after he was traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I've talked with many players, both active and inactive, and all of them were shocked to hear the association backed Curt Flood without taking a vote of the full membership," Yastrzemski said.

West Team Captures Victory In Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The long, long, football season is over, until summer, anyhow, and many a neglected housewife will breathe a sigh of relief. But it went out with a bang Sunday in the 20th annual Pro Bowl as the National Football League closed its books on the game as it has been presented for two decades.

The West won, 16-13, on a note of drama that came with 72 seconds remaining—a perfectly executed 28-yard pass from Roman Gabriel, of the Los Angeles Rams, the NFL's Most Valuable Player, to Carroll Dale of the Green Bay Packers, who has been doing this sort of thing for 10 years.

The balding Dale, an ex-Ram, cradled the ball in the left corner of the end zone, just a step or so from out of bounds, and that was it.

The East attack, guided by Cleveland's Bill Nelsen and New York's Fran Tarkenton, had bedeviled the mighty West defense all afternoon. And the East defense had stymied and held the West to just one touchdown.

Curiously, the game turned around on a two-point safety by the West with less than five minutes remaining. A bad center pass sailed over punter Bobby Walden's head.

The Pittsburgh kicker out scrambled Atlanta's Greg Brezina for the ball. The safety made the score 13-9 and the East had to punt.

Detroit's Lem Barney ran it back 22 to the West 45. Eight plays later, including key gains by Blatimore's little used Tom Matte, the West had the ballgame.

Dallas' Mel Renfro was the defensive man on Dale. Renfro needed no defense from the East coach, Tommy Fears, but he got it.

"There just is no defense on a perfectly thrown ball and a great catch," said Fears, who caught a lot of them in his great years as a Ram.

Fears went back to the play that preceded the errant pass from center that led to the safety. On a vital third and three, Jim Marshall of Minnesota smeared Nelsen for a 12-yard loss to the East 17.

Atlanta's coach, Norm Van Brocklin, the West coach and of course another former all-time Ram great, got the game ball.

Chicago's Gale Sayers was named the back of the game, an honor many felt could be shared with Gabriel, and Dallas' George Andrie won Lineman of the Game laurels.

Game management envisions next year's Pro Bowl: With the merger, it could be a virtual NFL-American Football League all-star entanglement.

Karlander Scores Goal In Red Wings' Victory

By The Associated Press

Los Angeles Kings goalie Gerry Desjardins frustrated a massive Detroit Red Wing assault that sped 38 shots on goal during the first two periods of National Hockey League play Sunday, but still let two pucks slip through that eventually gave the Wings a 3-1 victory.

Detroit has won seven and tied one of its last eight games.

Al Karlander and Pete Stemkowski scored 59 seconds apart late in the second period which pinned down the game for Detroit.

In other NHL action Sunday, Boston topped Montreal 6-3, Chicago led Oakland 3-1 and Pittsburgh fought off Philadelphia 6-4.

Eddie Shack's first period goal gave the Kings a 1-0 lead and Desjardin's spectacular goaltending kept the Wings well at bay.

But Karlander broke through at 17:07 of the first period when he banged in Bobby Baun's rebound for his second goal of the season. Then Stemkowski scored his 15th at 18:06 on Gary Unger's rebound.

Desjardin aggravated a strained knee on the Stemkowski drive and had to leave the nationally televised game. Way Rutledge finished up for the Kings. He surrendered Gordie Howe's 15th goal at 16:16 of the final period.

Bobby Orr, the 21-year-old superstar of the Boston Bruins had a goal and an assist in Sunday night's 6-3 victory over Montreal to break his own season scoring record for a defenseman.

Orr got his assist Sunday night right at the start when he helped set up a goal by Phil Esposito in the first minute of play. Then after the Bruins had fallen behind 2-1 in the second period, he blasted in a slap shot from the blue line to tie the score late in the session.

The assist was his 52nd of the season and the goal was his 13th, giving him 65 points with nearly half the campaign still to go compared to the record full season production of 21-43-64 which he set a year ago.

The Canadiens came back to take a 3-2 lead, however, on a goal by Yvon Cournoyer in the closing minute of the second period, only to have Boston stage a four-goal barrage by Jim Lorentz, Fred Stanfield, Eddie Westfall and John Bucyk in the finale.

"It felt great," Orr said of the record-breaking goal and the prolonged ovation it drew from the 14,835 fans at Boston Garden. "It wouldn't have meant as much if we had lost though, that's for sure. It didn't look too good at the end of the second period."

The third period was all Boston as the Bruins dominated play to win their first game over the Canadiens in five tries this season.

Emeralds Lose In Last Period

MANISTIQUE — Only a rally in the final stages of the fourth quarter enabled the Gwinn Model Towners to get an 89-74 victory over the Manistique Emeralds in a non-conference basketball game played Saturday night.

The Emeralds held a one-point, 38-37, advantage at half time, but they fell behind by four at the end of the third period, 61-57. Manistique pulled back in front by four points in the final quarter and held on until the 3:19 mark, when Gwinn broke the game wide open behind the scoring of Dick Brown.

Brown scored 20 points in the game and 11 of them came in the final stages of the game. Terry Froberg led Gwinn in the scoring department with 29 points on 14 field goals and one free throw, while Mike Hatfield helped out with 12, Judson Stone 11 and Joe Warren 10.

Jerry Sample led four Manistique players in double figures with 19 points while Dave Mickelson chipped in with 15, Gary Webber 14 and Kendall Neeson 12.

Gwinn connected on 53 per cent of their shots from the field in the game, canning 39 of 73, while Manistique made 27 of 75 for 36 per cent. At the free throw line, Gwinn was 11 for 25 and the Emeralds were 22 of 33.

Manistique will now be idle until Friday night, when they travel to Sault Ste. Marie for a Great Lakes Conference contest. The loss Saturday night left the Emeralds with a 2-7 record for the season.

In the preliminary game, the Manistique junior varsity scored a 60-50 victory over the Gwinn jayvees.

Moore Stars As Pistons Triumph Against Lakers

By The Associated Press

Veteran Detroit center Walt Bellamy never left the bench Sunday night for the first time in 241 consecutive regular season National Basketball Association games.

No, he wasn't injured and he wasn't necessarily off his game. What happened was, center Otto Moore got hot, setting a personal career record of 25 points while leading the Pistons to a 106-100 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers. Moore also clamped onto 15 rebounds.

Moore, who is in his second season with the Pistons, had a previous game high of 22 points.

In other NBA action Sunday, Boston upset New York 109-102, Phoenix edged Baltimore 135-134, Milwaukee trounced San Francisco 123-107, Atlanta drubbed Chicago 125-107 and Philadelphia walloped Cincinnati 141-116.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana downed New York 129-111, Denver blasted Carolina 135-112 and Los Angeles defeated Dallas 137-124.

Moore played the entire 48 minutes so Bellamy had to sit out the action against Los Angeles.

After trailing 22-21 after the first half, Detroit took a 51-43 halftime edge and increased the margin to 81-68 at the end of three quarters.

The Lakers performed a spectacular comeback in the final quarter slashing Detroit's lead to four points with 18 seconds remaining.

Jerry West of Los Angeles led all scorers with 30 points for the evening. Dave Bing was hit for Detroit with 27 points.

Boston's reserve guard Emmette Bryant came off the bench at the start of the second period against New York and scored 13 points in the third quarter to spark Boston to a 90-80 lead. John Havlicek scored 30 points for the Celtics, who became the first team to beat Eastern Division-leading New York twice this season. Willis Reed led the Knicks with 31 points.

Phoenix trailed Baltimore by 24 points with 16 minutes left. then guard Gail Goodrich shot in 12 of his 22 points in the final period as the Suns came back to win on rookie Lamar Green's tip-in with seven seconds left.

Dick Van Arsdale topped Phoenix scorers with 30 points. Kevin Loughery gunned in 34 points and Jack Marin 33 for baltimore.

Another backcourtman, Jon McGlocklin, hit for 25 of his 29 points as Milwaukee built a 58-39 halftime advantage en route to a victory that moved the Bucks to within five games of New York.

Greg Smith added 25 and Lew Alcindor 23 for Milwaukee. on Williams tossed in 26 for San Francisco, playing with injured Nate Thurmond and Jeff Mullins, who was on military reserve duty.

Playmaker Walt Hazzard connected for 40 points in leading Western Division-leading Atlanta over Chicago, which was paced by Tom Bowerwinkle with an NBA career high 29 points.

Hal Greer, known as a high-scoring guard, led Philadelphia's route of Cincinnati with 27 points. Luther Rackley paced the Royals with 25.

Saturday, Chicago edged Milwaukee 132-130 in overtime, Seattle nipped Phoenix 134-131 and Baltimore crushed San Diego 131-115.

Douglass Wins Phoenix Event

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Dale Douglass, one of a flock of tour regulars who have come into their own in the last couple of years, said a touch of maturity may be responsible for the rise in his golfing fortunes.

"The last two years have been marked by a significant change," the articulate, soft-spoken Douglass said Sunday after taking the title in the $100,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

"I've always managed well, managed my game well. But now I'm just playing better. And I'm putting much, much better. That makes all the difference.

"Maturity may have something to do with it. I'm getting a little old not to have matured some," the 33-year-old said.

Douglass finished at 271, 13 under par on the 6,765-yard, par 71 Phoenix Country Club course, and had a one-stroke margin over veteran Howie Johnson and Gene Littler, the defending champion and third round leader.

Littler slipped to a final 70 while Johnson had a 68.

Tied at 273 were Dave Hill, Dave Marr, U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, Bob Lunn and Tom Weiskopf. Hill, Marr and Moody all had 67s, Lunn a 68 and Weiskopf a 70.

Littler lost sole control of the top spot when he took bogeys on the eighth and ninth holes. Then Hill, the 1969 Vardon Trophy winner, Marr, a former PGA champion, and Bob Lunn took turns at the top, but all eventually drifted back in the tightly bunched field.

Trimester Abroad To Be Discussed At High School

Students at Gladstone High School will hear John C. Beechy, admissions counselor at Goshen College, discuss the trimester of study and service offered at a progam Thursday, Jan. 29.

The operation of the trimester of study and service is unique in that it is avaiilable to all college students, it sends students to developing countries in Central America and the Caribbean, it is a combination of seven weeks of study and seven weeks of unsalaried service, and it costs no more than a trimester in residence on campus, Beechy said.

A year and a half ago the trimester of study and service was inaugurated at Goshen College, and was received with virtually unanimous acceptance by the students. This month the fifth contingent of students left for study and service units in Costa Rica, Guadeloupe, Jamaica, and Nicaragua.

Goshen College, a fully accredited four-year liberal arts college owned and operated by the Mennonite Church, enrolled 1,145 full-time students last fall. It offers preprofessional and professional courses and majors in some 30 fields.

In Service

Bruce A. Ellison has received promotion to staff sergeant at Forbes AFB, Kansas. He returned from Rhein Main AFB, Frankfurt, Germany, in December where he had been on two months temporary duty. He expects to get his discharge in March. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ellison, 405 Michigan Ave.

Births

NICHOLAS — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholas Jr., are the parents of a seven pound son, Todd Andrew, born at 10:30 p.m., Jan. 16, at Hackley Hospital in Muskegon. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholas Sr., and the first grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nelson. Mrs. Nicholas is the former Candy Nelson.

Hearings Set

Retirement Set

EAST LANSING (AP) —State Police Detective Lt. Glen Tanner, assistant chief of the State Police Fire Marshal Division, will retire this week. His successor will be Willis Myers, also with the division and second in command since 1950, who will be promoted to the rank of detective lieutenant.

NOT READY

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—After many years in retirement, a 41 year old car wasn't ready to go back to work.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leffingwell and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nelson bought a 1928 Marmon for a hobby restoration project.

The Marmon protested when the Leffingwells tried to start it to drive it home. It coughed, back-fired, belched fire and blazed up.

Firemen cooled off the old timer without much damage.

"We're going to try again," said Leffingwell. "But we'll have someone stand by with a fire extinguisher."

Vice President's Trip Rated 'Success'

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's 11-nation trip to Asia appears to have been a diplomatic and political success, at home and abroad.

Agnew impressed Asian leaders with his straight and candid talk as he sought to reassure them that the Nixon doctrine means the United States will maintain itself as a Pacific power. At the same time, he emphasized the twin goals of greater Asian self-reliance and avoiding use of U.S. combat troops there in the future.

The trip certainly succeeded in its first basic purpose, to enable Agnew to broaden his knowledge of the world and its problems, and the vice president believes that it succeeded in its other main aim, to give Asian leaders a clearer idea of U.S. intentions in the 1970s.

Recalls Benefits

President Nixon sent Agnew on the trip clearly remembering the benefits he received from a similar mission for President Dwight D. Eisenhower 16 years ago. Agnew returns more conversant with the problems in this key area of the world and able to display this knowledge in the political speech-making he is about to undertake.

But despite Agnew's belief that the Asian leaders with whom he met understand U.S. policy, some doubts remain. His statements about U.S. initiatives towards Communist China caused apprehension and confusion on Formosa, and Thailand seems unsure of American intentions.

The Nixon Far East doctrine itself remains vague.

The administration appears to be deliberately leaving uncertain how it will react to future Communist moves in Asia.

Didn't Reach People

One basic gap in Agnew's trip was that he was unable to get close to the people but confined himself almost exclusively to official functions and meetings with government leaders.

The result was that the view he expressed was that of his advisers and of the officials in the places he visited.

In his public appearances, Agnew did little more than enunciate policies others had made. He stressed repeatedly how well briefed he had been and admitted candidly that his arrival and departure statements had been written by the State Department and by the office of Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's foreign policy adviser, although he called them "compatible with my own thinking."

The trip understandably gave few clues as to how Agnew would fare as an initiator of policy. While the limits under which vice presidents usually operate make this a problem for most holders of the office, Agnew came to it with less of a public record in national and international affairs than others before him.

Exudes Confidence

Yet, Agnew came back from the trip exuding confidence about his ability to handle anything in the foreign field and commented, "I don't feel I was ever unprepared for what I did because I have had a great deal of negotiating experience," a reference to his days as a labor mediator in Baltimore.

The vice president got through his hectic schedule without major public slips.

The trip was designed to prevent slips. There was a limit on public appearances, tight security limited his movements and activities, and his conferences with Asian leaders were relatively short, none more than 90 minutes.

In addition, however, Agnew displayed publicly and privately the poise of a veteran diplomat, despite some stiffness and an obvious difficulty in making small talk.

In public Agnew was a cool, almost diffident man, who seemed satisfied with what he saw and asked few substantive questions. But one aide who had never worked with the vice president before the trip said that in private he displayed a "lively curiosity."

Some Friction

Although there was some friction between Agnew's staff and the security agents who exercised final control with Agnew's acquiescence over virtually everything, there was none at all between the vice president himself and the 10 reporters on his plane.

On the plane, Agnew gave periodic briefings and answered questions freely. Although he took some swipes at the press, most notably in an appeal to troops in Vietnam not to believe everything they see or read about antiwar feelings at home, Agnew gave every indication that more personal contact would go far to ease some of his past tensions with the news media.

Brody Boosts Sullivan Hour

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael James Brody Jr., the generous margarine millionaire, not only made the headlines over the weekend, he also broke into show business—at the top.

That keen and flexible booker of talent, Ed Sullivan, moved fast and signed up the 21-year-old Brody for his Sunday night show. Brody had been handing out money for several days and promising to give away more. Knowing public curiosity was running high, Sullivan kept Brody's "singing debut" until close to the end of the CBS hour.

When it came, it may have been the biggest anticlimax in television since the marriage of Tiny Tim. Brody, in casual clothes and clutching a guitar, came on stage with his young wife and announced diffidently, "This is my first appearance anywhere ever." He strummed the guitar and sang something called "You Ain't Going Nowhere." At the conclusion, Mike kissed his wife, confided that "I've got 100 billion dollars to give out next week," and disappeared.

It is very probable that Brody makes a better philanthropist than performer and it is almost certain that Ed Sullivan will have a big fat rating for his show because Brody appeared on it.

Guests Criticize Hotel Employes In Detroit Fire

DETROIT (AP) — Two stewardesses have contended that actions by hotel employes caused "near hysteria" during a fire at the Sheraton - Cadillac Hotel in Detroit Saturday.

The fire was confined to a street floor tie shop and no injuries were reported, but thick, acrid smoke filled hallways up to the 28th floor.

American Airlines stewardesses Renee Babineau, 27, and Linda Simon, 26, said hotel maids were screaming "We're doomed! We're all going to die!"

The stewardesses said they were asleep in their 28th floor room about 3 p.m. when Miss Simon smelled smoke, got up and opened the door.

Filled With Smoke

"The halls were filled with smoke and you couldn't see," she said. They wrapped water-soaked towels around their faces and started moving down the hall to a stairwell.

"There were two maids in a room with a blanket over their heads, crying," recalled Miss Simon.

When they reached the stairway, it was crowded with guests and hotel employes trying to get down to the main floor, the women said.

"Maids and men with hotel insignias on their jackets were yelling and crying 'We're going to die! We're doomed! We can't get out!' " said Miss Babineau. "When we heard that, we thought we were going to die. I thought the fire was all over the hotel."

The crowd got as far as the 23rd floor and met another group of frightened people including more hotel employes, trying to run up the stairs, the women said. "They shouted that we couldn't get down so we went back up," said Miss Simon.

Soldier Calm

The women said the only person who remained calm and tried to help the others was a Green Beret soldier who the women identified as Joseph Miller of Cleveland. "He kept asking if everyone was all right and he tried to break open the door to the roof but it was locked."

Someone finally told the crowd in the stairway that the fire was confined to the main floor 28 stories below.

Besides criticizing the performance of the hotel employes, the stewardesses also said they felt the management should have telephoned the rooms to tell guests of the extent of the fire and they were surprised that the outdoor fire - escapes on the building only reach up to the fifth floor.

"It could have been a lot worse, I guess," said Miss Babineau.

There was no immediate estimate of damage but a hotel spokesman said the fire was primarly confined to the tie shop. The cause was not determined immediately.

Men Net $175

DETROIT (AP)— Three men, one of them armed with a gun, escaped with about $175 dollars after robbing the Hungry Pilgrim Steak House at the Detroit Hilton Hotel Sunday. A cashier told police she believed the robbers had visited the restaurant earlier in the evening, then came back and demanded money.

Alumni Reunion

EAST LANSING (AP)—Some 400 persons are expected to attend the 47th annual alumni reunion and postgraduate conference for veterinarians next Wednesday and Thursday at Michigan State University.

AT 35 DEGREES, lowest in two decades, having lifeguards on duty at Miami Beach seems a bit ridiculous, but here is Le O'Neal covering his ears to keep warm while watching the deserted surf. Other guard shelters are strung along beyond.
